Fire District's Ambulance Is Approved In Referendum

Voters Saturday approved a referendum for an ambulance for the Long Grove Fire Protection District. The official tally was 156 for, and 16 against.

The referendum will provide a tax levy of an extra 2.5 cents per $100 valuation to purchase the ambulance, which is expected to cost about $16,000. The current fire protection levy is 7.8 cents per $100 assessed valuation.

Long Grove Fire Chief Ed Deke said, "This will give us the missing link in this area. We don't have to rely on private ambulances." Deke said service also has come from nearby fire districts in the past.

Deke said he is hopeful the village will get to operate a used ambulance while the one to be ordered is built. It will be about 2½ months before the ambulance can be completed, and another nine weeks to fit it with the required equipment, he said.

THE CHIEF SAID the department is considering a van-type ambulance, which has more room inside than the sedan types. He said the ambulance will meet federal specifications and the department has applied to the Lake County Safety Commission for matching federal funds.

The Long Grove Fire Protection District includes about 1,200 Buffalo Grove homes north of Checker Road. The rest of Buffalo Grove is protected by the Buffalo Grove Fire Department under a contract with the Wheeling Township Rural Fire Protection District. The Wheeling district does not, however, extend outside Cook County.

The Long Grove department will operate theambulance with existing manpower. Deke said 23 members carry First Aid cards, about 14 have advanced First Aid training and five men have recently completed a trauma course at Lake Forest.

The ambulance will operate out of the Long Grove Fire Station, a location Deke said is central to the district. Deke said the ambulance should also cut down the ambulance response time to emergencies, allowing the department to get injured or ill persons to hospitals faster.

School Officials Rap Plan Commission Rules

Dist. 96 school board officials lashed out at the Buffalo Grove village board and planning commission at the board meeting Thursday night.

Dist. 96 officials and citizens in support of them are scheduled to appear before the village board tonight to explain the Naperville Ordinance. The ordinance requires developers to give school districts a certain amount of land or pay the face value of needed land according to the density of the development.

The Dist. 96 board voted unanimously last month to present the ordinance to the village. "All they've done is sit on it," said school board member James Duncan. "I'm tired of them whispering about it at the water fountains or on coffee breaks."

Duncan told the board it was about time to put some pressure on the village and reemphasize what the district is trying to do. He said he feels the entire plan commission has been misguided.

SUPPOSEDLY the board is talking about replacing the idea of the Naperville Ordinance with a plan to charge developers a flat $100-per-bedroom in the areas they build. They can also give land as an option.

Duncan said they compared this method to the proposed ordinance for the Chesterfield Development and it worked out that both would be the same. "However, they didn't take other examples where the difference may be thousands of dollars apart," he said.

If we don't get this ordinance or don't prove its importance, the only ones who are going to pay are the people. The commission and village board say they have to ease the burden on the developer. They aren't worried about the purchaser," said Duncan.

The board said if the idea of the Naperville Ordinance is passed the village is afraid it will be unable to grow. One school board member then pointed out that the village should look at Naperville and see that despite the ordinance, it is growing.

THE BOARD also said it would like to refresh the minds of the village board members on two points. First, that many of them ran for election on an education slate and secondly that the history of Dist. 96 and the village shows some hard times.

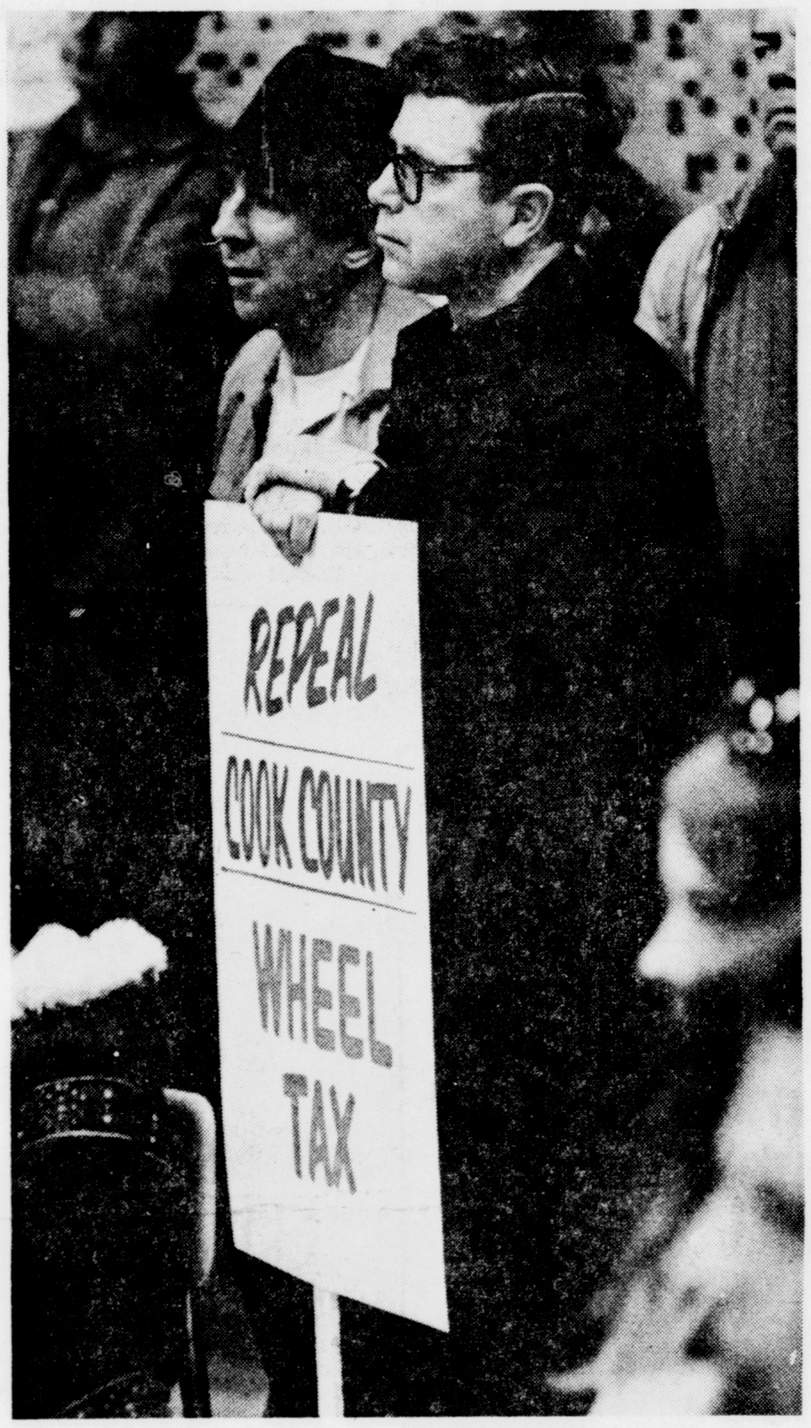

The school board said the district was left in the cold two years ago when another developer would not donate land for a school site.

At that time citizens of the district set up picket lines and marched on the developer's office.

They added they were also promised sidewalks at that time for the children to get to school and they still haven't seen them.

The school board unanimously supported a motion to attend tonight's meeting and is also planning to bring a consultant.

The meeting will start at 8 p.m. at the Village Hall, 50 Raupp Blvd. The meeting is open to the public.

THE SIGN SAYS IT ALL: almost 1,000 persons demonstrated their opposition to three new Cook County taxes, including one on vehicles for unincorporated areas, by attending a rally Saturday at Hersey High School in Arlington Heights.

Village's Police Chief Will Resign

Buffalo Grove Police Chief Harold Smith said Friday he will quit his job as soon as a replacement can be found.

The formal announcement of Smith's resignation is expected to be made at tonight's village board meeting. Smith called a meeting to inform his men Saturday.

However, Smith told the Herald Friday that he won't submit a letter of resignation for "a couple of weeks."

He said he will remain on the job until the village can find a replacement.

Coinciding with Smith's decision to quit is a critical report on the operation of the police department. The report will also be made public at tonight's meeting.

The study was conducted by Cook County police officials under a grant from the Illinois Law Enforcement Commission.

According to Village Mgr. Daniel Larson, the Buffalo Grove study is part of an overall study of suburban law enforcement in Cook County.

Larson said Buffalo Grove was chosen to be part of the study because, "we're a growing community" and the village straddles two counties.

Larson said the study is extremely critical of the operation of the department.

Smith, who was formerly with the Mount Prospect Police Department, was named Buffalo Grove chief in 1968. He replaced Arley Paige, who resigned to run unsuccessfully for the village board.

Also on the agenda for tonight's meeting is discussion of recommendations from the plan commission regarding donations of public use land from developers.

Other items include:

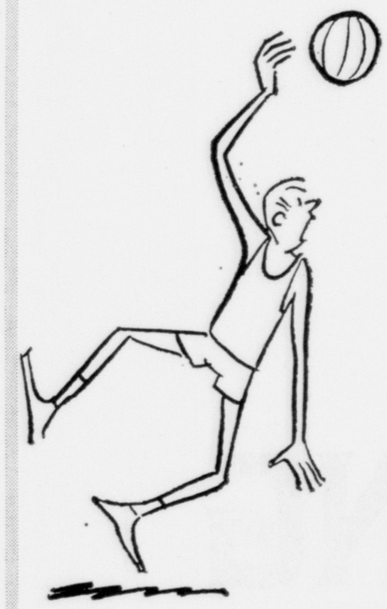

—Approval of an agreement for the improvement of the Lake County part of Arlington Heights Road.

—A review of the projected annual report concerning the current year's fiscal activities.

—A review of the audit report for the fiscal year ending April 30, 1971.

—A review of bids for the purchase of public works equipment.

The village board meeting will be at 8 p.m. at the municipal building, 50 Raupp Blvd.

1,000 At Rally Protest Wheel Tax As Plans For Legal Action Develope

Suits against the Cook County vehicle tax for unincorporated areas and perhaps against two other county taxes will be filed within two weeks, Taxpayers Protest Committee (TPC) leaders announced Saturday at a rally attended by almost 1,000 persons.

The rally at Hersey High School in Arlington Heights was part of a campaign being waged by unincorporated area Cook County residents against the vehicle tax and two other recently enacted taxes. The other two are an excise tax on new cars sold in the county and a tax on mobile homes. Besides protest rallies, the campaign includes telephone and letter-writing activities.

Saturday's rally was sponsored by the Prospect Heights Improvement Association (PHIA), one of the largest homeowners groups in the Northwest suburbs. PHIA officials had predicted that at least 4,000 would be there. Attendance was slightly less than one-fourth of that, but rally leaders said they were nevertheless satisfied with the turnout.

TPC officials told those at the meeting Saturday that attorneys plan to file suits against the county later this week or early next week.

They promised a suit opposing the vehicle, or "wheel" tax would be filed but were uncertain whether their attorneys would file similar suits against the mobile home and excise taxes.

Those attending the rally were asked to sign petitions opposing the taxes and to contribute funds for the campaign.

Jack Gilligan of Prospect Heights, one of the rally's organizers, told the autest en masse."

TPC President Richard Hechler, a resident of the Glenview area, explained dience the meeting was set up "to pro-

'Give Us Answer Or Cancel Project': Walsh

Harper, UI Pressed On Transit Study

The Northwest Municipal Conference is going to bring some pressure to bear on Harper College and the University of Illinois to complete a long-overdue study on mass transportation.

The study is being sponsored by more than a dozen communities in the Northwest suburban area, which each have contributed 10 cents per capita to finance it.

The study, being done jointly by Harper College and the Center for Urban Studies at the University of Illinois, Chicago Circle Campus, was originally scheduled to be completed last fall.

Jack Walsh, Arlington Heights village president, urged the NMC Wednesday to push for the results of the study or at least a definite completion date.

"We've never gotten anything but a few verbal, interim reports which were nothing more than excuse-making," Walsh said Friday. "Arlington Heights has delayed activity in seeking answers to mass transportation problems, waiting for some answers."

Walsh added, "It has now reached a point that I've asked the NMC to bring about an answer or to cancel the project and get someone else to continue it."

ROBERT TEICHERT, mayor of Mount Prospect, said Friday, "We're peeved about it. The report has taken too long and the delays are improper."

Teichert said payments have been made for the study as various steps were completed. He said the NMC has paid about 75 per cent of the total bill to date, but has received no results. The total cost was originally estimated at $27,500.

He said his village has now received a final bill, still without any report, which Mount Prospect has refused to honor. "Harper should be chastised," Teichert added. "If they are going to compete (for funds for such studies) they should perform."

The NMC instructed Palatine Village Mgr. Berton Braun, NMC secretary, to communicate its displeasure to Harper and press for an answer.

David Groth, who has been coordinating the activities at Harper, said Friday he "has been lead to believe" the report will be ready "sometime in May."

Groth said several unanticipated problems have caused the delays.

GROTH SAID THE census data used was available only incomputer language and had to be converted for purposes of the study. He said Ed Thomas, project director, was hospitalized for some time, causing additional delays.

"We're doing everything we can to wind it up," Groth said Friday. "I understand their (the NMC) concern. "I am concerned too, but the end is now in sight."

The NMC, however, would like a definite date for completion. The suburban mayors and managers group has also expressed concern about the actual worthiness of the report when it is published.

Teichert said there is a question of whether the statistics have remained valid since they were obtained in surveys some time ago.

Waste Disposal Study Now Due May 1

May 1 is now the target date for the solid waste disposal report by the incinerator subcommittee of the Environmental Control Commission (ECC), Ronald J. Patun, subcommittee chairman, said at the ECC meeting Wednesday night.

"The subcommittee decided to postpone its final report, which was originally scheduled for March 15, until the study of the landfill in north Arlington Heights has been completed and analyzed for impact on the solid waste crisis in Arlington Heights," Patun said.

The committee will recommend a solid waste disposal system for the village. In January, the village administration proposed an incinerator for solid waste disposal.

Though incineration and landfill sites present the most viable alternatives to the solid waste problem at this time, Patun suggested high pressure compaction as another viable alternative Wednesday.

"High pressure compaction is more than an experimental curiosity," Patun said. "I think it is a viable alternative to the solid waste disposal problem."

ACCORDING TO Patun, the compaction unit would cost $500,000 to install and about $2.50 a ton to use, which is considerably less than the cost of incineration. He said the unit could compact solid waste to 1,800 pounds per cubic yard, which is four to five times the density of the current landfill operation in Arlington Heights.

Patun also reported that an incinerator in Hamilton, Ontario, Canada, which was recently installed, has a particulate emission of under .05 grain per standard cubic foot of air, which is below the U.S. Federal standard.

"All along we've been looking for an incinerator that meets the federal standard, and I think we've found one — even though it's in Canada," Patun said.

In other ECC business, Mrs. Mary Schlott, chairman of the conservation subcommittee, announced that her committee will begin studying parking lots and lighting requirements of the village.

"WE PLAN to look at what we have, see what the village requirements are and evaluate what's being done and what can be done," Mrs. Schlott said. She said she will work in conjunction with other village departments, such as the department of public safety, which are interested in these problems.

Distinguished Scholar Award

Wheeling High School senior Susan O'Brian has been named as one of the first two winners of Alumni Distinguished Scholarship awards at Illinois State University.

The award is based on results of scholastic competition conducted on the ISU campus last month. The competition was open only by invitation to the most outstanding students who have been admitted to ISU for next fall's freshman class.

The scholarship provides for full expenses — $2,300 a year — for four years at the university. Miss O'Brian is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William O'Brian of 1411 E. Lillian Ave., Arlington Heights.

She is also an Illinois State Scholar, a National Merit semi-finalist and plays flute in the concert band, wind ensemble, orchestra, marching and pep bands at Wheeling High. She is also a member of the girls' interscholastic tennis and badminton teams.

Scouting News

Cub Scout Pack 112 from Nathaniel Hawthorne School in Wheeling had its first Blue and Gold Banquet recently. Guests of honor were Hawthorne principal Kay Kacena, and Pat Cramer, president of the PTA.

Trophies from the pack's Pinewood Derby were awarded to Pat Miller, Wally McManaway, Chris Black and Joe Nunez.

Pat Miller and Todd Knight were advanced to Webelos.

In other business, it was announced that April 16 to 22 has been designated as Earth Week in Arlington Heights and that Mayor Jack Walsh is the chairman of the Earth Week steering committee. The first meeting of that committee will be held Tuesday at 8:30 a.m. in the Municipal Building, 33 S. Arlington Heights Rd.

Appoint New Sacred Heart Superintendent

The appointment of the Rev. James Michaletz as superintendent of Sacred Heart of Mary High School in Rolling Meadows was announced Wednesday night by the Rev. Robert Clark, superintendent of the Chicago Archdiocese.

The appointment of Father Michaletz, who is currently on sabbatical from his position as principal of St. Viator High School in Arlington Heights, was made last night at a public meeting at Sacred Heart called to discuss the future of the all-girl Catholic school.

About 300 parents and students attended the meeting two weeks after it was announced the Religious Order of the Sacred Heart of Mary, a New York-based congregation, would no longer be able to staff and maintain the school because of financial problems.

At the same time, the announcement was made that the Chicago archdiocese would assume ownership of the school and keep it open.

Joint Use Of Gun Range Approved

Wheeling policemen are going to use the Mount Prospect police firing range under a new cooperative arrangement between the two communities.

The Wheeling police are paying a token fee of $10 for the use of the range.

Roger Stricker, Wheeling director of public safety, explained Wheeling police have never had the regular use of a range before.

Original plans to build a range in a basement under the Wheeling Municipal Building were scrapped because the building is in the flood plain and a basement could not be built.

Wheeling police began to use the Mount Prospect range recently in order to qualify with their new 9mm automatic pistols.

Stricker said under the new agreement Wheeling police will use the range for monthly qualifications and for training with the pistols.

'Suit Seeks To Destroy Farm Co-ops'

Illinois Atty. Gen. William J. Scott is seeking to destroy the right of farmers to organize cooperatives, according to one of the large dairy trade organizations named a defendant in a federal antitrust suit filed last week by Scott.

Robert J. Van Liere, executive secretary of the Central Milk Producers Cooperative, said the class action suit filed in Federal District Court, Chicago is "completely without foundation." He referred to Scott's action, which charged that five associtions control 95 per cent of all milk shipped to the Chicago area, and that they conspired to keep competitors out of that area. An additional premium levied through the organizations goes into a superpool to support their alleged illegal activities, Scott said.

"Central Milk Producers Cooperative is an organization of 16,000 Illinois and Wisconsin dairy farmers who joined together in 1968 to market milk in Wisconsin and the Chicago metropolitan area," said Van Liere "Over 50 years ago, farmers and laborers fought bitter struggles to win the legal right to organize cooperatives and labor unions to improve their economic conditions. Scott now seeks to destroy that right to further his own political ambition."

SCOTT said last week that a year-long investigation was triggered in February, 1971, when the price of milk in the Chicago area increased and numerous complaints were received on rising milk costs. He contended that the large dairy organizations charged a premium above the price set for the Chicago marketing region by federal milk market administrators.

Replying to this charge, Van Liere said, "We don't believe that farmers are prohibited by law from seeking and obtaining more for their milk than the federal minimum price, as contended by Atty. Gen. Scott, any more than labor is prohibited by law from bargaining for a wage higher than the federal minimum wage.

"Dairy farmers receive about 12 cents per quart for the milk that they ship into the Chicago market, less than two cents a quart more than they received in 1952. Their costs of production have almost doubled during that same period forcing thousands of them out of business.

"Central Milk Producers Cooperative has done nothing wrong. It will defend, in the courts, the right given to farmers by Congress and the State of Illinois to organize together in cooperatives to obtain a fair price for their product," Van Liere said.

MARTIN BURNS, an attorney for the Associated Milk Producers Inc. Chicago office, said last week that the cooperative had not tried to monopolize the Chicago regional marketing area. He said milk prices today are almost as cheap as the prices 10 years ago.

The Chicago regional marketing area covers 16 counties in northern Illinois including Lake, Cook, and DuPage) and several counties in Wisconsin.

Responding to Scott's charge that individual farmers are forced to join the huge milk cooperatives in order to market their products in the Chicago area, Burns said they are free to cancel their cooperative contract on an annual basis. He noted that the approximately 10 per cent annual turnover is largely due to smaller farmers going out of business. "The trend is toward larger and larger herds," he said. "Today the farmer needs to produce 1,200 pounds of milk a day in order to make a profit. It used to be only 600 pounds a day several years ago."

The four cooperative organizations named in Scott's Suit are: Associated Milk Producers; Central Milk Producers Cooperatives; Central Milk Sales Agency of St. Paul, Minn.; and Associated Reserve Standby Pool Cooperative, Madison, Wis. A trade association also named as defendant is Associated Milk Dealers, Inc., Chicago. Its members include major dairies serving the Chicago market.

The complaint filed by Scott against the associations seeks to dissolve a "giant milk monopoly." It is a class action brought on behalf of the State of Illinois and the cities and school districts in the greater Chicago area. Scott said that public schools in the Chicago area account for the purchase of more than 36 million pounds of milk and milk products a year.

Scott's complaint asks that the defendant cooperatives be dissolved and that their members be permanently enjoined from engaging in a similar conspiracy. He said the suit is aimed at the giant multi-state cooperatives.

A Real Bargain For His Coupons

EVEASHAN, England (UPI) — Joseph Begley saved 2,000 cigarette coupons and mailed them to a British cigarette company in exchange for a watch. When the watch had not arrived he wrote and asked why.

Back came three watches. Begley only wanted one so he mailed back the other two.

The next day 10 parcels arrived from the cigarette firm. The following day 18 parcels arrived. The day after that the local post office telephoned and said 10 more parcels were waiting for Begley.

All of them were trade-in gifts given by the cigarette company in exchange for coupons Begley never had. Among the gifts were three tape recorders, a doll, a golf bag, two electric blankets, a cot, saucepans, a pressure cooker, and long playing records.

Begley sat down and wrote a long, pleading letter to the cigarette company asking them to stop. In the return mail came a reply saying, "It was a computer error." The company gave Begley 10,000 coupons in compensation for his troubles.

With these Begley ordered tools and a bedspread.

He received a plant stand and two stepladders instead.

The Lighter Side

Democratic Primary Is A Scramble

WASHINGTON (UPI) — After two primaries, the Democratic presidential race has become so scrambled there is only one political analyst who understands it.

So,, please, Mr. Shakespeare, do your thing:

Q. In a nutshell, sir, what is the situation in the Democratic party?

A. "This house is turned upside down. There is nothing left remarkable beneath the visiting moon."

Q. How do you account for George Wallace's stunning victory in Florida?

A. "He had the dialect and different skill, catching all passions in his craft of will. He was wont to speak plain and to the purpose."

Q. I take it you mean that when Wallace took an anti-busing stand he hit upon the right issue?

A. "As an arrow shot from a well-experienced archer hits the mark."

Q.. How does Wallace feel about his victory?

A. "THEY LAUGH that win. From the crown of his head to the sole fo his foot, he is all mirth."

Q. Do you think he now has visions of reaching the White House?

A. "Like one that stands upon a promontory, and spies a far-off shore where he would tread, wishing his foot were equal with his eye."

Q. Okay. Now let's talk about the other candidates. How did the Florida primary affect them?

A. "O! What a fall was there. What a falling-off was there. You may say they are not the men you took them for."

Q. Do you think Senator Muskie's role as the front-runner hurt him any?

A. "They that stand high have many blasts to shake them. They stumble that run fast. With the help of a surgeon, he might yet recover."

Q. Senator Humphrey says his second-place finish gave his campaign a boost. What are his main assets?

A. "A MINT of phrases in his brain. Ever good at sudden commendations. He will maintain his argument as well as many military men in the world,"

Q.. What impact will the Florida primary have on the rest of the country?

A. "Argument for a week, laughter for a month, and good jest forever."

Q.. Will the losers have enough strength left to run in the Wisconsin primary?

A. "Like greyhounds in the slips, straining upon the start."

Religion Today

by Rev. Lester Kinsolving

by LESTER KINSOLVING

An increasing number of religious publications are facing the possibility of the same fate as Look magazine — especially since the astronomical increase in postal rates. But the Worldwide Church of God's publication, The Plain Truth, appears by contrast to be thriving, and is currently pushing the 2 million mark in circulation.

It is an amazing periodical in that it neither accepts advertising nor charges any subscription price. Yet it is well laid out, in full color, with articles of wide general interest and almost none of the piosity overload of many denominational house organs.

The magazine does, very subtly, solicit voluntary giving — which is apparently plentiful. For Plain Truth's executive editor, Garner Ted Armstrong, speaks over paid programming to more than 300 radio stations daily and to 65 TV outlets each week.

He is one of the most effective of all conservative religious broadcasters. Instead of holy ranting or endless Scripture-spouting, Garner Ted, as he does in his magazine, focuses primarily on contemporary concerns, often with good sense, logic and reasoned hope.

Garner Ted is the heir-apparent of the Worldwide Church of God, which was founded in 1933 by his 80-year-old father, Herbert W. Armstrong, a former public relations man.

THE DENOMINATION already has what Garner Ted reports to be 250 local churches, in the U.S. and overseas; three colleges (all named Ambassador, and located in Pasadena, in Big Sandy, Texas, and in St. Alban's, England), and an annual budget of more than $40 million. (None of the three Ambassador colleges has been accredited, however, despite an enrollment of 1,500.)

Garner Ted further disclosed, during an interview, that his denomination is the one true church: "I think all churches believe this, don't they?" He also discussed a number of additional beliefs of the Worldwide Church of God; such as Saturday rather than Sunday as the day of worship, no observance of Christmas or Easter, contention that the Doctrine of the Trinity is heretical, and baptism by immersion only.

When Garner Ted was asked whether his church was a believer in "British Israel," his assured and congenial manner, which he exhibited throughout the interview, altered only minutely — and with such subtlety as to pass unnoticed.

For "British Israel" is as astounding an historical theory as the Mormons' Jesus-came-to-North America revelation. It contends, roughly, that the Ten Lost Tribes of Israel migrated across Western Europe, with the tribe of Dan leaving evidence in the naming of the Danube river and Denmark (Dan mark). The Prophet Jeremiah somehow arranged to have a daughter of King Zedekiah marry an Irish king. Further, the Stone of Scone, which is just beneath the British throne, is really one of the stone pillows of Jacob, as mentioned in Genesis 28:10.

WHEN ASKED about this, Garner Ted smiled and replied: "It's a likelihood, but it can't be proved. It's an interesting aside. We certainly don't regard this as a required belief, if that's what you're getting at."

But an investigation of Ambassador College by the Pasadena city attorney in 1963 disclosed that according to the institution's constitution and bylaws as adopted in 1951, the student body is "restricted to the race of Israel, whom we believe now to be the white, English-speaking Anglo-Saxon and Celtic people, and the democratic peoples of Northwestern Europe, in addition to the Jews descended from the Kingdom of Judah."

When appraised of this report, Garner Ted appeared surprised and replied rapidly: "That must have been while I was in the Navy. It's been altered dramatically. We have no such restrictions now."

The only other question which seemed to have even slightly unnerved Garner Ted was how much of that $40 million budget is devoted to his salary.

After an extended and eloquent prologue that detailed all his duties as broadcaster, editor and college administrator, he finally came out with it:

"Would you believe $20,000?"

This, let it be noted, was a question rather than an answer. But no matter. The buildings (including faculty residences) at Ambassador College are magnificent; Garner Ted's private office would be appropriate for the president of General Motors Corp. or the White House; and with all expenses paid while he flies Ambassador's Dassault jet plane overseas, who needs more salary or a higher tax bracket?"

Big Business Profits Gain

NEW YORK (UPI)—The 100 largest corporations in the nation made $29.4 billion in profits last year — a 76 per cent increase, according to Gallagher Presidents' Report.

General Motors Corp. made the largest gain — 217.9 per cent, the report said. The gain compared with a sharp drop in the company's 1970 profits because of a long strike late in that year.

Not counting GM's results, the other 99 firms showed a 70.8 per cent rise in aggregate after-tax profits, to $27.5 billion.

The report said the 76 per cent rise in profits was made on a 10 per cent rise in aggregate sales by the 100 firms to $376.9 billion, and that the average rate of return on sales after taxes edged up to 4.3 per cent from 4.2 per cent in 1970.

General Motors was second with its 217.9 per cent recovery to $1,936,000,000.

Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey was in third place with an 11.5 per cent rise to $1,460,000,000.

For Those Away From Home

Prospect Heights resident William Sefton was the victim of a bad joke when he walked up to the Wheeling Trust and Savings Bank and was arrested by police for suspected attempted bank robbery. Police said Sefton gave a teller a bank deposit slip which had a note on the back ordering the teller to hand over the money.

Police and FBI agents questioned Sefton and learned that someone had written on the back of slip before Sefton had picked it up. He didn't look on the back of it, but the teller did, and she summoned police while Sefton stood at the counter.

THE BUFFALO GROVE PARK DISTRICT announced it will continue to object to the Lake-Cook routing through the village, even though the village has now withdrawn its objections. The village agreed to the routing if Cook County will assist in rebuilding Arlington Heights Road.

NEARLY A FOOT of snow fell on the Wheeling and Buffalo Grove area Monday after a warm spring weekend. The wet, packed snow caused several traffic problems and forced cancellation of several village meetings.

OFFICIALS FROM THROUGHOUT the area were present Saturday at the official groundbreaking for the new Buffalo Grove High School. The site has already been cleared for construction at the intersection of Arlington Heights and Dundee roads. The $10.5 million school will have a capacity of 2,500 students, and is expected to be completed by the beginning of the 1973-74 school year.

THE WHEELING VILLAGE BOARD approved a special-use permit for the site of the Youth Services Bureau. The bureau will be able to operate from its building at 516 N. Milwaukee Ave. after repairs are made to bring the structure up to fire and electrical code requirements. The bureau will serve as a teen center, headquarters for TORCH mental health clinic and Omnihouse HOTLINE. The program is being funded by local contributions and a $131,000 grant from the Illinois Law Enforcement Commission.

W. CLEMENT STONE announced Tuesday he will donate the final $10,000 needed for the Wheeling High School Band trip to Germany this summer. The millionaire insurance magnate and resident of Chicago's North Shore said he would contribute if the band raises the first $130,000 of the $140,000 necessary to make the trip.

THE WHEELING ZONING BOARD OF APPEALS approved a proposal to rezone the W. Strong Street area to allow construction of 47 apartment buildings, despite the objections of about 75 persons at the board meeting. The opponents also presented a petition with more than 1,000 signatures objecting to the rezoning in the presently residential (single-family) neighborhood.

BUFFALO GROVE JAYCEES have announced competition is open for "Miss Buffalo Grove 1972." The winner will be selected at the pagenat May 13, and she will then go on to the Miss Illinois Pageant in July. Girls will be judged in talent, swimsuit and evening gown competition.

THE WHEELING FACULTY COUNCIL and Dist. 21 Board of Education are making little headway in open salary negotiations talks. After the second public meeting, no concrete proposals have been agreed upon. Difficulties may arise in four proposals — the no-strike clause, impasse clause, grievance procedures and the time-length of the contract.

test en masse."

TPC President Richard Hechler, a resident of the Glenview area, explained his organization was acting "as an umbrella group for homeowners associations in Cook County," working with homeowners groups in southern and eastern Cook County as well as those in the Northwest suburbs.

Hechler indicated that current plans call for the TPC to become a permanent federation of homeowners groups and announced the group's officer elections would be held next month. "With this group we can speak as one voice. And the group can inform us of new taxes, zoning and the like," he said.

Samuel Young, whose law firm is serving as a legal adviser to TPC, told those at the rally that Cook County expects to rase $7 million with these new taxes. But he said, two weeks after the taxes were approved, "The Better Government Association and the Chicago Tribune charged that Cook County was wasting $14 million a year. If what the BGA says is true, then Cook County certainly doesn't need $7 million."

Young, currently a candidate for the U.S. representative seat in the 10th District, was among several area officeholders and hopefuls who addressed the rally.

Brad Glass, a state representative and candidate for a state senate post, said the county enacted the taxes through the new state constitutions home-rule provisions. But, he also pointed out "the constitution provides that a home-rule unit may elect by referendum not to be a home-rule unit." Under current state law no such election can be held for three years, he said. He promised to support legislation that would remove the three-year moratorium on such elections. State Representatives Eugene Schlickman, David Regner and Robert Juckett, all of the Northwest suburbs, each voiced their opposition to the taxes.

A "modest contribution" to the group's legal fund from the Wheeling Township Republican Organization was pledged by Richard Cowen, Wheeling Township Republican committeeman.

Organizers of the rally billed it as nonpartisan and invited several Democratic officials. None showed up; however, messages of support came from State Rep. Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, and Chester Chesney, Elk Grove Township Democratic committeeman.

After the rally about 20 homeowners association leaders met in another part of the school, discussing the rally, and getting information about future rallies.

During the second meeting Hechler urged motorists not to pay the vehicle tax "until the last possible moment." Cook County officials have set May 15 as the deadline for paying the tax. A county vehicle sticker must be displayed by that date. For vehicles of less than 35 horsepower the tax is $10. For all others it is $15.

McGovern's Future 'In The Stars'?

by BARRY SIGALE

If candidates for President were judged solely on the star system, South Dakota Sen. George McGovern would be at the top of the pre-Democratic convention polls.

McGovern, who brought his primary campaign machine to Miner Junior High School in Arlington Heights Friday night, lists several television, movie and recording stars in his camp and hustled two of them to the Northwest suburbs to enliven a rather drab campaign.

With him Friday night was television actor Dennis Weaver, of "Gunsmoke" and "McCloud" and star of the highly acclaimed made-for-TV movie, "Duel," and Johnny Rivers, recording superstar with several hit records to his credit.

Other famous personalities throwing their names around in hopes McGovern would lick several opposing candidates and get the nod from the Democratic Party at its Miami Beach convention are Shirley MacLaine, Warren Beatty, Leonard Nimoy and Peggy Cass.

THE SENATOR came to Arlington Heights to make a pitch for his candidacy and to support the bid of several local persons to represent him as delegates from the 12th Congressional District at the Democratic Convention.

McGovern is not entered in the preferential primary tomorrow (that race is between Maine Sen. Edmund Muskie and former Minnesota Sen. Eugene McCarthy) but does have 105 delegates from 19 congressional districts willing to support him if they are elected.

12th District candidates representing McGovern include local residents Robert Grabitz of Arlington Heights, Betty Spence of Buffalo Grove and Robert Rudman of Hoffman Estates. Mrs. Lucille Gallagher of Arlington Heights is on the ballot as an alternate delegate.

McGovern, who drew the loudest applause from the 500-plus persons at Miner when he told of programs he would institute to reduce taxes and end the war in Southeast Asia, fell behind in his speaking schedule and showed up two hours late.

That's when his advance men and workers at his suburban campaign office in Palatine saved the day. A restless crowd was entertained by several folk singers and speeches by the several delegates. Interspersed were comments by Chicago Ald. Leon Despres, a staunch foe of Mayor Daley. Despres was master of ceremonies.

THEN CAME Rivers and the crowd, more than half of them teen-agers, began to sense that the senator was closer to arriving. And, after a couple of Rivers' hit songs, the senator appeared.

McGovern came up to the stage from the back of the gymnasium and was greeted with handshakes and slaps on the back by his fans. Weaver met him onstage and gave him a rousing introduction.

"Thanks for having patience," Weaver yelled out (adding a few "right ons.") "I'm here because this man (McGovern) has been speaking out for me for nine years. Now I'm speaking out for him. I've been out since last summer for him. There's not another man that could make me leave California."

Heartworm Disease Poses Seasonal Danger To Dogs

by NANCY COWGER

While snow is barely melted from the ground, suburban veterinarians already are concerned about mosquitos, and the debilitating and even killing disease the insects will bring to area dogs.

Heartworm disease is transmitted by mosquitos, and the mosquito season is approaching. Three suburban veterinarians feel now is the time for dog owners to take preventative steps to insure their dogs will not be stricken.

While the disease has been around the Chicago suburbs for a long time, and was identified in cases as long ago as 25 years, it was considered relatively rare in this area. Heartworm disease has been termed a tropical disease, because of its transmission by mosquitos.

In tropical climates, where the mosquito season is extended, a higher percentage of dogs are affected. For example, Dr. Jack D. Noyes of Barrington said about 90 per cent of Florida's dogs have had it.

BUT IT IS NOT a tropical disease anymore. In a survey conducted in January by the Illinois State Veterinary Medical Association, veterinarians throughout the state reported having tested 25,000 dogs for heartworm disease in the previous year. Of those 5,000 or 20 per cent tested positive. The cases were plotted on a state map, and showed a shotgun effect, with markers scattered all over the state. But concentrations were obvious in the northwest Chicago area, east of St. Louis and in the far south of the state.

Because the figures took in the whole state, the percentage is not necessarily accurate for any particular portion, said Dr. Noyes, pointing out one southern veterinarian tested 1,500 dogs and had 1,200 positive results.

The Chicago Veterinarian Medical Association conducted a similar survey. Dr. Noyes, treasurer of the Chicago association, reported 19,000 dogs were tested and 5.5 per cent, or 1,100 dogs, were positive. In the Northwest suburbs, the percentage varies from eight to 12 per cent, depending on the community.

Dr. John H. Wawirka of Lake Zurich said one of the highest frequency levels is in his vicinity.

A dog can only be infected by a mosquito bite. The mosquito depsoits infectious larvae in the dog, and the larvae become microfilaria, or young worms. The worms then travel to the heart, and from there can travel to other organs. Each worm produces more microfilaria, but these young worms are not infectious until they have been taken into a mosquito biting the dog.

IN THE HEART and organs, the adult heartworms cause damage by blocking blood circulation and clogging the organ parts, disrupting their functions. With a massive presence of the worms, the disease can be fatal. Even with a less heavy concentration of them, organs can be seriously damaged, and complications can result.

Treatment of the disease is complicated by the fact they cannot be detected in testing until after they have been in the host eight months. A dog may test negative one year, and by the same time next year have massive damage from the disease. Dr. Noyes told of a dog he tested negative one year, nad positive a year later. Soon after the second test the dog died.

When a dog is tested, if it shows a positive reaction indicating heartworms already are present, the veterinarian first must make a complete evaluation of damage to vital organs. Drugs used to kill the worms are toxic to the organs, and any damage must be repaired before the drugs can be used, said Dr. George Beatty of Palatine.

Once the dog is ready for heartworm treatment, it is injected with drugs four times in two days. They kill the worms, but they have no affect on the circulating microfilaria, which may be on the way to the dog's heart from the location of a newer mosquito bite. After six or seven weeks, said Dr. Beatty, the dog must receive doses of oral drugs to kill the microfilaria.

IF THE DOG tests negative for heartworm, all the veterinarians recommended preventative measures. These include a daily dosage, by pill or liquid orally administered, of a drug to kill all microfilaria left by mosquito bite. The dosage is to start at the beginning of mosquito season, or within the next few weeks, said Dr. Noyes, and continue until two months after the mosquito season. The dog also should be tested three months and six months after starting, to detect any microfilaria present but undetected in the first test.

Every dog should be tested, said the three veterinarians. Although some persons believe the disease affects only young dogs, age is no factor, they said. A heavy fur is no protection against mosquito bites, and even dogs with the thickest of fur can be infected. There is no danger in combining the preventative drugs with other medications, said the veteranarians.

Even new puppies should be tested, said Dr. Wawirka, although a positive reaction likely would be a false positive until the dog is eight months old. It is theoretically possible for a puppy to inherit the disease from the mother, with infectious microfilaria being transmitted through blood.

While the cure can be expensive, ranging from $75 to $150 or more, depending on complications in the vital organs, the prevention is not costly. The blood tests cost about $6, and the daily doses for an entire season would cost a total of $4 or $5, said Dr. Wawirka.

"With the incidence of it so prevalent, the test should be included as a regular procedure" for every dog a veterinarian examines, said Dr. Wawirka.

Triton Students Training At Alexian

Six inhalation therapy students from Triton College, River Grove, are receiving their first clinical experience at Alexian Brothers Medical Center, Elk Grove Village. They are Eve Lee, Arlington Heights; Thomas Lee, Villa Park; Gerry Marko, LaGrange Park; Cha Park, Villa Park; Robert Roginski, Schaumburg; and Mrs. Beverly Zeloof, Highland Park.

Inhalation therapists are para-medical professionals who can ease or take over the natural breathing process for patients through their knowledge of techniques and skill in using special equipment. Therapists primarily treat patients recovering from surgery, pneumonia, bronchitis, asthmatic attacks and other respiratory difficulties. They also help to detect and measure disease.

The demand for professional therapists has sharply risen as physicians have become more aware of the value of inhalation therapy. The number of treatments given monthly at Alexian Brothers Medical Center has more than quadrupled since the hospital opened 5½ years ago. Around-the-clock service is provided by the seventeen member inhalation therapy department at Alexian Brothers.

The interning first-year students, who are working toward associate science degrees, have studied inhalation therapy theory at Triton and are now prepared to put the theory into practice.

The students are working four hour shifts three days a week at Alexian Brothers. Under the supervision of Mrs. Anna Vitols, ARIT, inhalation therapy department head and Triton College instructor, students will handle office procedures, set up and clean equipment, give treatments, observe surgery and autopsies, and report interesting and unusual case studies.

Businessmen's Unit Files State Suit

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) — A Chicago public interest group has filed suit against 10 Illinois politicians because it says Atty. Gen. William J. Scott declined its request to bring the suit himself. But Scott's office said it has never heard of the suit.

Businessmen for the Public Interest and Leonard Fuchs of Chicago filed the suit Thursday in the 7th Judicial Circuit Court asking that the defendants, who served the legislature between 1961 and 1964, be forced to turn over nearly $500,000 in racetrack stock profits to the state General Revenue Fund.

The defendants include Secretary of State John W. Lewis, former Republican speaker of the House;; Cook County Board Chairman George W.. Dunne, Democratic majority Leader Clyde Choate, D-Anna.

The suit said that Fuchs made a written demand on Scott last month asking him to bring suit against the defendants but that Scott declined in March to bring the suit.

"We have no record of the request either in our Springfield or Chicago offices," a spokesman for Scott said, "We have never heard of it."

The suit contends that the 10 legislators received racetrack stock from Mrs. Marjorie L. Everett, former head of Arlington Park and Washington Park racetracks, for $1 a share between 1961 and 1964 which they later sold for $3 to $7 a share.

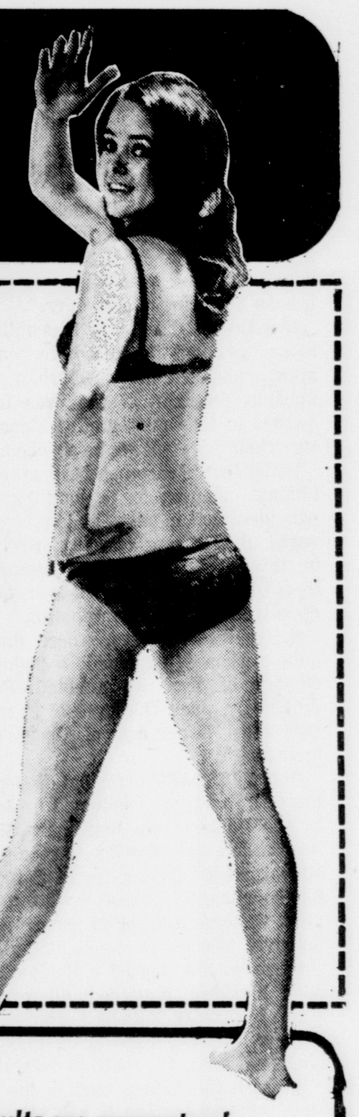

THE SUIT said they were obligated, however, "to utilize the power and influence of their public offices solely in the interests of the people of the state of Illinois and not for personal profit."

Since they used their influence as legislators to obtain the racetrack shares that were not generally made available to others, the suit said, they should be forced to turn over the profits from the sale of the stock to the state.

Also named in the suit were Sen. Arthur J. Bidwell, R-River Forest, Senate majority leader at the time; Rep. William J. "Bingo Bill" Murphy, R-Antioch; and former Reps. A. L. Cronin, D-Chicago; Clyde Lee, D-Homewood; Robert T. McLoskey, R-Monmouth, Everett R. Peters, R-St. Joseph, and the late William E. Pollack, R-Chicago.

Peters is currently under indictment for viilating the state ethics law. Pollack's wife is named in the suit as the sole recipient of her late husband's will.

Where He Stands
"Integrity in government means more than not using public office for personal financial gain. Equally important is that government will not have, and does not deserve, the confidence of the people unless it operates within the Constitutional principles under which it is established.

A legislator must develop positions within the framework of the Constitution and refuse to promise more than can be lawfully delivered. He must not sacrifice the integrity of the law for the sake of a politically profitable or expedient position.

Furthermore, he must understand that the most effective government exists where people feel most able directly to influence the laws under which they are expected to live. He must do everything within his ability to reverse the present drift of governmental power away from the people and strive to return it to local control.

Finally, he must realize that he is a trustee of the public funds and must be committed to holding down spending and taxes and cutting waste and extravagance wherever and whenever possible.

This is the real meaning of integrity in government. This is what the people have the right to demand of their legislators. This is the approach to government that I offer."

Win At Bridge

by Oswald and James Jacoby

Jim: "How about some articles on squeezes. They are supposed to be plays for experts only, but everyone gets a chance to work them."

Oswald: "The essential feature of a squeeze is that you get one opponent in a position where he wants to stop two suits but doesn't have enough cards to do so."

Jim: "North looks at his 22 high card points. He knows that South has shown at least 16 for his no-trump opening so the partnership holds at least 38. He also knows that 37 is the key number for a grand slam so if South has cheated one point the grand slam should be a good one. He bids seven and puts down the dummy happily."

Oswald: "South isn't that happy when he sees the dummy. This time 38 points may not be enough because he can only collect three tricks in each major suit and at first glance he won't make his grand slam unless one of the minor suit breaks 3-3."

Jim: "Neither minor suit breaks 3-3 but South is going to make his slam by the simple expedient of cashing his high cards. Once he has played out all the spades and hearts East will be forced to discard a club or diamond and either discard will be fatal."

Oswald: "It hasn't taken any real skill to work this simple squeeze."

Power Crisis Threat Here Next Summer

CHICAGO (UPI) — The president of Commonwealth Edison Co. has told a congressional committee that parts of Iowa and northern Illinois, including the Chicago region, face a "power crisis," particularly in the summer months, because the Cordova, Ill., nuclear power plant cannot be operated.

The statement by Thomas G. Ayers was released here. It was made before the Joint Committee on Atomic Energy, and echoed statements the utility previously had given in testimony before the Iowa Conservation Commission.

The Cordova Quad - Cities plant does not have an operating license from the Atomic Energy Commission, and the Iowa commission. Ayers appealed for congressional action to remove some of the legal and regulatory rules that have blocked the operation of the Cordova plant and others in the country.

AYERS SAID that without power from the new plant, Edison's reserve for the summer will be one-third short of the 14 per cent margin which the utility needs for adequate operation.

"We face a power crisis," said Ayers. "Passage of the legislation this committee is considering today would greatly improve the prospects for an adequate supply of power in the Midwest. We need your help. More importantly, the millions of people who would be affected by a power shortage need your help."

Ayers said that it would take 5 days to get one Quad Cities unit up to full power and without it the Edison reserve would be one-third short of the margin over a predicted peak load. He said this margin could be wiped out "on short notice by a combination of miscellaneous small limitations and the loss of a single large generating unit."

Environmental groups have opposed the operation of the Cordova plant. Ayers said that in addition to lacking an operating license, Edison was hampered by issuance of an injunction barring the AEC from giving it an interim permit until a final review has been completed under the national environmental policy law.

Leon Ames, Now 70, Comes Out Of Retirement And Loves It

by VERNON SCOTT

Hollywood (UPI) — Leon Ames retired voluntarily five years ago and almost went bananas pottering around the garden and otherwise occupying himself as a senior citizen should.

Trouble is, Ames — at age 70 — is not a senior citizen.

He is a ham actor and probably always will be.

"I can't remember wanting to be anything but an actor," said the man who starred in such television series as "Life With Father," "Father of the Bride," and "Mister Ed."

"I retired because I thought it was a natural turn of events when a man became 65. Baloney. Do you mean to tell me I don't know as much about acting as I did when I was 23?"

Ames, along with a grizzly bear, stars in a nature movie titled "Toklat." It is the story of the last grizzly in Utah's Uinta Mountains, circa 1926.

AMES WILL ALSO be seen in a supporting role with Elizabeth Taylor and Richard Burton in "Hammersmith is Out."

His hair is grayish white and he wears thick glasses. He also sports a Van Dyke beard and luxuriant mustache. Ames is vigorous, energetic and determined to keep working.

At one time he owned two Ford agencies in Los Angeles. He sold one for a fortune and is in the process of selling the other.

"God's been good to me economically," Ames said piously.

"I began acting back in New England with the Charles K. Champlin Repertory Co. at $25 a week. After five years I worked myself up to $100 a week. I was only 26 years old at the time. Not bad for a farm boy from Indiana.

"My folks and relatives didn't cotton to the idea of me performing. They were Dunkards. Very strict. They thought acting was sinful."

AFTER FOUR decades of performing Ames took his wife Christine to Europe and Hawaii on extended vacations. They returned to their home in the San Fernando Valley, the same house in which they've lived for 27 years, for peaceful retirement.

"All I did was get under my wife's feet," he grumbled. "I wasn't any good at loafing. I just had to do something.

"When these young men from Sun International up there in Utah asked me to narrate the 'Toklat' picture I was all for it. Then they wrote me into the script.

"They've asked me to join their board of directors, and I just might do it. They are already doing another nature film about wolves."

Thus far, according to Ames, "Toklat" has earned some $4 million in the United States. He thinks it will bring in three times as much before it is taken out of the theaters.

City To Share Suburbia's Standards?

by BETSY BROOKER
A News Analysis

A proposal for more than $2.5 billion in school aid from Pres. Richard Nixon may be one of the first concrete examples of a move away from local school support.

Politicians across the country have called for more government support to relieve the tax burden on property owners, but their campaign pleas have only been words.

Not only does Nixon's plan offer an added source of revenue to budget strapped districts. It also sets an example for state governments.

In Illinois, Ogilvie has proposed $90 million hike in funds for elementary and secondary education. But educators, including the National Education Association, a teachers' group, and Michael Bakalis, state superintendent of public instruction, have charged this is inadequate. The critics point out that $40 million of that amount will go for grants, pensions and other expenses and $54 million is already in the coffers for parochiaid.

CURRENTLY, Illinois districts receive less than one-third of their revenue from the state, and more than half from local property owners. The federal government furnishes the rest.

This system has been declared unconstitutional by supreme courts in California and Texas, because it gives an advantage to the wealthy property owner. Several suits have been filed in Illinois also challenging the system. Two leading plaintiffs are Richard Martwick, Cook County superintendent of education, and Nick Blase, Niles mayor.

Many people — school officials and taxpayers alike — look at government aid as the only solution to the plight of the tax poor school districts. They see it as much more desirable than cross town busing, for example.

Backing this philosophy, Bakalis recently came out with a proposal to boost state aid to schools by $207 million. He said this would be the first step in a three-year program to bring state funding up to 50 per cent of local school budgets. Bakalis supports the contention that because the Illinois Constitution states education is the "primary responsibility" of the state, the state is responsible for at least half of school costs.

If both Bakalis' and Nixon's proposals are enacted, the benefits will be felt mainly by the districts on the bottom of the scale. Suburban districts have taken advantage of their high property values by developing the best programs, staff and facilities in the state. With the governments' support, other Illinois districts will be able to share suburbia's high standards.

Size Dominates On Honor Squad

Size isn't everything, but it's sure nice to have on your side.

Do you like teams with awesome size and fierce rebounders, teams with great intimidators and explosive scorers?

Would you like to see a team averaging 6-7 represent the Herald area in basketball?

Dream a little as you examine the 10th Annual All-Area basketball team released today by the Herald sports department.

There was a time when a big youngster with talent was usually found at a school outside the area.

Suddenly, they're in the news right in our own backyard, pulling down rebounds, blocking shots, flipping in bundles of points.

Selected by Herald sportswriters who cover the basketball scene from November through March, the 10th all-area team features youngsters standing 6-11, 6-9, 6-8, 6-4 and 6-2. How many colleges are that big? Even some pro teams may not match that size.

Heading the honor squad is Hersey's Andy Pancratz, a three-time all-area selection who has been named to the All-State team by the Illinois Prep Sportswriters Association.

Wheeling's Roger Wood is a two-time selection on the all-area squad, and Mark Bondeson (Maine East), Chet Pudlosky (Conant), and Ken Peters (Arlington) are making their first appearance.

Presenting the 1971-72 all-stars:

ANDY PANCRATZ
Hersey High School

One of the few area preps to play on the varsity four years, Andy also has the distinction of becoming the first athlete to be named to our team three times.

The 6-9 forward's career statistics show why he has dominated the area since he was a freshman — over 1,000 rebounds, 200 blocked shots, 100 assists and 1,230 points. This latter total landed him third on the all-time area scoring list.

Although he had a ton of baskets, he was most noted as a team player. Because of his loyalty to his teammates and his dedication to the game, he was an inspiration to all the Husky players, according to Coach Roger Steingraber.

ROGER WOOD
Wheeling High School

This three-year varsity letterman finished second on the all-time area scoring list with 1,388 points. Roger played in 66 games compared to Palatine's Ron Kizlicki, the top scorer with 1,562 who played in 77 games.

Roger, making his second straight appearance on the all-area team, does have the distinction of being the Mid-Suburban League's all-time scorer with 750 points.

Easily the tallest player in the history of this team, the 6-11 Wildcat giant pulled down 815 rebounds and slammed 250 shots back in the faces of his opponents.

MARK BONDESON
Maine East High School

Possibly the all-time super shooter in the northwest suburbans, Mark hit over 70 per cent from both the free throw line and the field!

This dandy Demon devastated defenders for 505 points and a 21.9 average, second best on this elite team.

Mark also used his lanky 6-8 frame to pull down an awesome total of 465 rebounds (20.2 per game). He blocked 120 shots, too.

A three-year letterman, Mark has been in double figures each season.

CHET PUDLOSKY
Conant High School

The Cougars depended on Chet a lot during the season, especially during the tournament. He didn't let them down.

Chet, a muscular 6-4 frontliner scored 444 points, but the biggest basket of all was his 25-footer at the end of the Elgin game. This gave Conant a one-point victory and set up the first sectional title ever achieved by an MSL school.

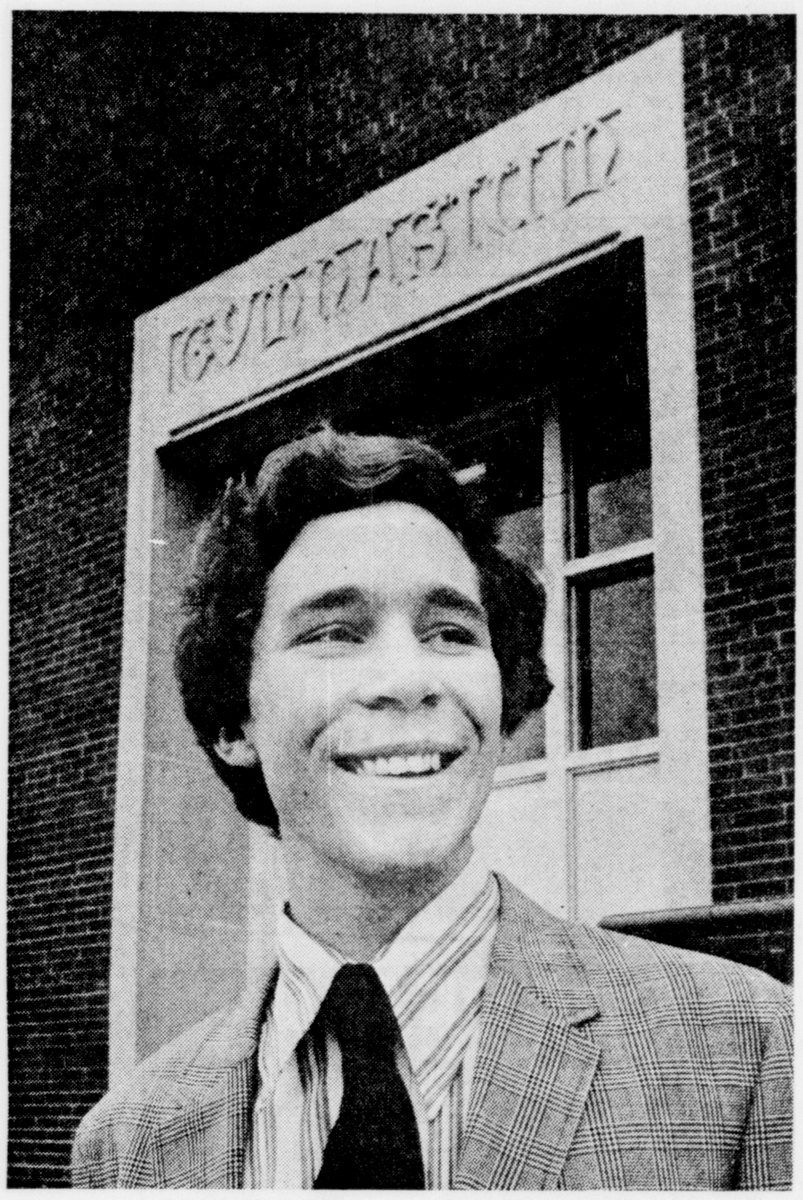

This first Cougar ever to make this five-man squad smashed his school's single season rebound record with 399, nearly double the former mark, also held by Chet.

KEN PETERS
rlington High School

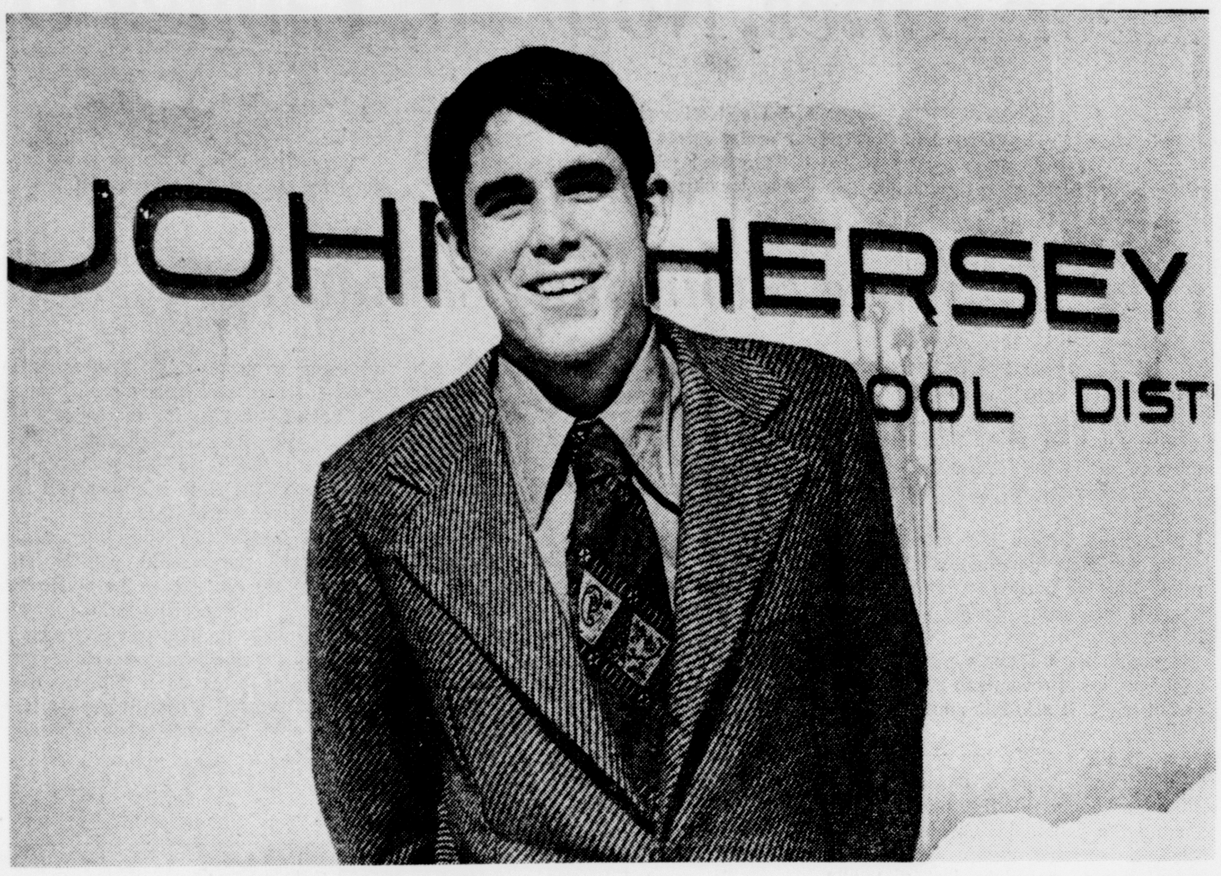

Although the smallest of the top five players, this 6-2 Cardinal backcourt star had the largest scoring average — 23.6.

Ken, the sixth Cardinal to be honored on all-area, was the trigger man for a high scoring Arlington offense. He poured in 520 points despite being double and triple teamed by many opponents. He finished as the third highest scorer in Arlington history with 869 points.

When all this extra coverage caused fouls, Ken burned his foes from the foul line, hitting 81.5 per cent (120 of 145).

You'll Vote On These Delegates

If you're voting tomorrow, you'll not only be choosing between Walker and Simon or between Ogilvie and Mathis. You'll have the opportunity, to select from a list of some familiar and some unfamiliar names, the delegates to either the Democratic or Republican conventions.

For your convenience, we are reprinting the lists for the 12th Congressional district (Barrington, Elk Grove, Hanover, Palatine, Schaumburg and Wheeling Twps.) and the 10th Congressional district (Maines, Evanston, New Trier, Niles and Northfield Twps.).

Following the candidate's name is the presidential candidate to whom he or she is pledged — or an indication that the delegate is uncommitted. The Herald is not endorsing in these races.

It's An OPEN Primary

For the first time, Illinois voters appearing at the polling booths tomorrow will be able to exercise fully their choice of parties in this particular election — without having to bear the weight of a previous decision to vote either Republican or Democrat.

Last week a three judge federal panel ruled a portion of the state's primary election law unconstitutional. The portion of the law which the judges found in conflict with a voter's rights is the requirement that a vote may not change his party affiliation for a period of 23 months.

Before the federal judge ruling, a voter who decided to cast a ballot in a Democratic election primary, for example, could not vote on the Republican side for 23 months.

We agree with the ruling of the panel and welcome the idea of an Illinois primary which offers the voters a broader use of their franchise.

The ruling directly benefits that segment of the voting population which we most often praise — those people who do not automatically vote party line, but who recognize the wide spectrum of opinion in both parties and follow the candidates who are most aligned with each voter's opinions on the issues.

Under the new ruling, Democrats and Republicans will be able to vote in the primary contest which most directly affects them — and for candidates which most directly reflect the voter's views, regardless of party affiliation.

Voters will still have to select either a Democratic or Republican ballot and may not switch from candidate to candidate across party lines.

Even with the restrictions on party slates, voters will no longer face the possibility of voting in a party primary one year and then finding themselves obliged to vote again with that same party the next year — even if those elections are unopposed or offering only candidates with views unacceptable to the voters.

Critics of the new Illinois primary ruling contend that open primaries allow blocs of voters to vote in opposing party primaries and sabotage a party by electing weak candidates.

As the federal panel pointed out, there is simply no evidence in any other state that such unfair tactics occur, or, if attempted, that they succeed.

No, that argument simply will not hold up to the more persuasive opinion that no law should hinder a voter from being able to support the candidate of his choice with his ballot — even if that candidate is in another political party.

The new Illinois primary law will not have a direct effect on tomorrow's balloting in the suburbs. Suburban voters have not faced a party primary during the past 23 months and so would be able in any circumstance to select the party slate of their choice.

But other elections will come, and with them will come also the evidence that a voter has the right to change his mind — and his party affiliation — more frequently than every 23 months.

Fence Post Letters To The Editor

District Praised On 'Watchdog' Rule

The Board of Education of District 63 (Des Plaines) has performed a valuable public service by making an honest attempt to see that all income-producing property within the boundaries of the district are assessed honestly and fairly.

It is interesting to note that on the same day this news item appeared in the Des Plaines newspapers, the Chicago papers were carrying information regarding valuable Swibel property in Chicago that allegedly was not even on the tax roles. Too often those of us in the suburban areas feel that all areas outside the corporate limits of the City of Chicago are exempt from the apparent machinations of the entire assessment process that would appear to favor a select few at the expense of the average citizen.

Inasmuch as the Board of Education of District 63 has a commitment to the citizenry of its district, it has performed a valuable public service by attempting to be the "watch dog" of the public funds through the assessment procedure. Would it not be likewise in the best interests of other citizens in the general area, if other elective boards and government officials likewise served in a "watch dog" capacity relative to the assessment procedures? Possibly many citizens are assuming this duty is being assumed by the various taxing bodies. It would appear that in practice most officials of taxing bodies do not assume this function. They merely go through the motions of appearing to be assuming this as one of their duties. Thus, the average citizen is the loser.

During the last few years, much information has appeared in the metropolitan press alleging improper assessment procedures in Cook County. If the existing procedures properly safeguard the interests and integrity of all persons, there is nothing to be lost and much to be gained by bringing the entire process out into the open.

To date most of us must admit that this has not been done and my guess is that it will not be done in the near future. This is not a subject that tends to interest most of us even though it effects all of us. As a result, the average citizen is kept in relative ignorance of the entire assessment process.

Thanks again, District 63 Board, for bringing this to our attention. If you are proven wrong, so be it; but it would appear that as of the present your allegations have not been answered openly and to the best interests of the public. My guess is that once again this will be buried and nothing will be done about it after the initial hue and cry. Nevertheless, thank you for performing this role entrusted to you by the electorate.

Youth 'Concern' Shown

In the past four years Alderman Robert Sherwood has displayed a large amount of concern for the 18-20 year-old voters in Des Plaines.

As chairman of the Health and Welfare Committee, Sherwood established provisions for professional counseling and psychiatric evaluation for the city's troubled youth through the Maine Township Mental Health Association and Salvation Army Counseling Service.

While serving as chairman of the Youth Development Committee, he established a Youth Advisory Committee, consisting of high school students who advised and made recommendations to the city council regarding youth affairs of the city.

Last summer several youths, employed by the city on a temporary basis, were compensated partially for their services with federal anti-poverty funds. At a public hearing it was discovered that the youths were not aware that they were committing any offense by accepting wages from the federal government. Sherwood, who was chairman of the committee hearing, helped discover the real cause of the problem; bureaucratic bungling, not the innocent youths.

As a Republican state representative for the fifth district, Sherwood would continue to show great concern, not only for the youths in his district, but us adults as well. Voters in the 18-21 age group desiring a voice in their state government should vote for Robert Sherwood in the March 21st primary. A vote for Sherwood will help a man who believes the voice of youth should be heard.

Word-A-Day

Business Today

by LEROY POPE

NEW YORK (UPI) — The storage battery that conks out without warning is the bane of every motorist and boater.

If the battery dies in a boat out in deep water that can lead to real disaster. A dead battery in a car on a lonely road or on a big city street at night is an expensive nuisance.

Leon Braun of Molecular Energy Corp., Livingston, N.J., is developing a solution to the problem — a copper-fluoride primary battery that is activated by dipping it into salt water. The salt water boater could just hang the emergency battery over the side of the boat. The motorist would have to find some tap water, fill a pail with it and add some table salt carried in the car for the purpose.

In either case, the battery would produce enough juice to start even a big motor a couple of times. The cost, probably about $10.

THIS BATTERY was first designed to replace expensive silver chloride batteries for sonobuoys and other naval and military devices. There is another type that carries its own electrolyte in a plastic squeeze pouch. It has promise for use in small camping equipment, fire alarms, electric band warmers and meteorological instruments.

Molecular Energy is engaged in developing series of advanced copper-fluoride and silver-cadmium batteries, both storage and primary units.

They are intended for defense, aerospace, scientific and commercial applications. But the one with the biggest potential is some years away from quantity production. It is a solid state storage battery with an apparently unlimited useful life that is one-third the bulk and one-sixth the weight of a lead-acid battery. It uses no liquid or paste electrolyte and if allowed to go dead, it can be recharged in five minutes.

Braun said this battery not only could replace the lead-acid automotive and boat battery, it could at last make a short range urban electric automobile commercially attractive by cutting required battery weight two-thirds and giving the batteries a greater useful life.

IF THE BATTERY proves ultimately feasible Braun thinks its first use will be in such appliances as portable television receivers and cordless power tools.

There already have been many advances in battery technology. Today's ordinary purpose batteries, dry cells as well as storage units, are several times as efficient as batteries were before World War II.

A few years ago when people first began to get seriously concerned about automobile exhaust pollution, scientists and engineers labored earnestly but in vain to produce a successful zinc-air battery to power a long range electric automobile.

This shows, Braun said, that battery technology seldom is an easy nut to crack. And the economic factor can be even tougher to lick. For almost 40 years the battery people have known how to make a nickel cadmium automobile battery that will last 10 or 12 years and never give trouble if not neglected. But its cost would add a substantial amount to the price of the car.

Program Alerts Employes To Dangers Of Unfitness

A preventive-medicine education program employers can use to teach their workers how to recognize and avoid potentially serious health problems has been announced by G. D. Searle & Co. of Skokie.

The self-motivational program of films, books and written examinations to teach people how to deal with the dangers of heart disease, cancer, alcoholism and drug abuse, physical unfitness, obesity, respiratory illness and mental stress is called Project Health. The eight-part course in preventive medicine was produced by MEDCOM, Inc., N.Y., and is being marketed by Searle Educational Systems, Inc.

The Project Health educational program is based on the research of 138 medical specialists from the nation's leading health institutions, including the National Cancer Research Institute, NASA's stress laboratory, Framingham Heart Study and Johns Hopkins and Harvard University medical schools. Executive spokesmen from Xerox, U.S. Steel, Eastman Kodak and PepsiCo also contributed to the program.

"Each year industry pays vast sums of money for hospital, disability and life insurance, and much of it to cover the cost of illnesses that might have been prevented in the first place," says Robert H. Moore, president of Searle Educational Systems. "Virtually nothing is spent to assure the continued good health of an employee."

Some companies' idea of an adequate health program is the annual physical exam or a few square feet of exercise room. Few realize how much money a complete program of health education can save in less expensive insurance coverage and increased employe productivity and longevity, he said.

Industrywide studies, for instance, have shown that it costs $4,000 to replace a first-line supervisor, $15,000 for a middle manager and $28,000 for a high-level executive.

"Our goal is not to make every businessman think he's a doctor," says Robert E. Fuisz, Project Health publisher. "We only want to motivate him to be aware of any problem of his own and to seek a physician for diagnosis and treatment."

The Project Health program includes documentary films which show businessmen and medical experts confronting specific health problems; graphically illustrated books that further explain health problems using laymen's language and then describe corrective action plans with self-tests for home use; follow-up program of newsletters, progress reports, incentives and rewards.

Allstate Tests Air-Bags For Ford Motor Co.

Allstate Insurance Co. is participating in joint field-testing of an air-bag seat belt restraint system now under development by Ford. Allstate employes will use 200 cars equipped with the air bags.

"We know that many members of the public, because they do not have all the facts, believe air-bags to be unreliable and dangerous," said Judson Branch, chairman. "Members of the Allstate employe family who will drive these air-bag equipped fleet cars plan to demonstrate that air-bags as presently developed are reliable, safe and have an as yet unrealized people-saving potential."

The cars have air-bags installed for the right front seat passenger side only. The test requires the use of lap belts. Nearly 100 of the specially equipped Mercurys already have been produced at the Ford Motor Co.'s St. Louis assembly plant, and the remainder will be assembled by an early date.

Allstate had asked for front seat air-bags for driver and passenger seating positions, but Ford wanted to test on passenger side only.

Allstate estimates that if all cars had air-bags, front and rear, 24,000 deaths a year could be eliminated, plus hundreds of thousands of crippling injuries.

Under a new U.S. standard of the Department of Transportation, all 1976 car models will require air-bags or other passive restraint systems.

Personal Finance

by CARLTON SMITH

About the last place a taxpayer would expect to find problems would be in a shoebox full of those nice, old family-style Series E bonds — the U.S. Savings bonds that people have been buying since World War II with their spare change, or through payroll deduction plans. But trouble, it seems, is where you find it.

ONE WOMAN who tried to distribute a bundle of the bonds among her children and grandchildren created an estate problem that wound up in Tax Court, whose recent decision serves as a caution to other owners of the bonds.

You can give up to $3,000 a year to any one person, without running afoul of the federal gift tax. Hence many parents and grandparents with a surplus of savings bonds or the like exercise the sensible foresight of making gifts of cash or securities to their heirs, over a period of years, to avoid the nuisance and the expense of such assets getting involved in probate, after their death.

THAT IS what Mrs. Elliott was doing — or thought she was doing — with a quantity of E bonds that had all been bought with her own funds, but were registered as co-owned by herself and various children and grandchildren. She went about giving them the bonds by turning over to them keys to the safe deposit box in which the bonds were kept, and makint a notation of the gift in a dairy she kept.

But when tax men began scrutinizing estate records after Mrs. Elliott's death, they said she hadn't given the bonds away at all. True, agreed the Tax Court in a recent ruling which "underscores the necessity for observing formalities in making gifts of Series E bonds," says the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants.

What caused the trouble was Mrs. Elliot's failure to comply with Treasury regulations concerning the transfer of E bond ownership. The only way one co-owner can transfer his or her ownership rights to the other, says the CPA's, is by surrendering the bonds and having them reissued in the name of the new sole owner.

There's an additional problem, the institute points out, if gains in the value of the bonds haven't been reported annually on income tax returns. The total accumulated increase in value will be treated as income to the owner of the bonds, in the year that he or she gives them away by transferring ownership.

THE SAME THING holds true whenever bonds are redeemed or "cashed in" by an owner. It can create a sizable tax problem for people who've accumulated a good number of bonds over the years — and the AICPA says "it is not uncommon to find significant holdings of Series E bonds" even in large estates.

If you're an accumulator of savings bonds, give some thought to reporting the "interest" (the increase in redemption price, actually) on each tax return. You could well find it less painful to pay the smaller amounts of tax each year than to get belted with a whopping big tax all at once, years later.

Believe it or not, highway hostility is not one of the necessities of life. It doesn't even have to be a fact of life.

Just because the other guy has an axe to grind doesn't mean you have to grind it with him. When another driver temporarily loses his head, don't lose yours. Don't honk back. Don't shout back. Don't drive aggressively to hold your ground.

The war of nerves and bad tempers doesn't have to go on. Your new car dealer would like to see the war end. He would like to see more peaceful, safer streets for all Americans.

So the next time the other guy tries to take out some highway hostility on you, do the one thing that will prevent an accident and might make him come to his senses. Keep your cool. Courtesy on the road can put out a lot of fires. There is an alternative to War... Peace.

Treat Your Skin Kindly

For A More Attractive Face

GLENN ROBERTS, Elizabeth Arden international face designer, demonstrates on his wife certain beauty techniques in applying make-up.

by GENIE CAMPBELL

Make-up, the subject of the most controversial beauty discussion or . . . "Why oh why can't I look as flawless as that girl on the cold cream jar?"

Can cosmetics be the key to a more attractive face, or do they function as merely "carrot danglers" for women bored with their every morning wake-up look?

There's no doubt that make-up is discriminatory. The problem is that it's much too temperamental. It has to be treated gingerly and laywomen don't know how. Too much is as bad as too little. The wrong kind will get you into a fix and what about fashion changes? There is constant innovation in make-up, even if only subtle.

BUT ABOVE ALL, the first concern should be with the condition of the facial tissue.

"Make-up is only as good as what you apply it to," said Glenn Roberts recently during a make-up demonstration held at Marshall Field's Woodfield store.

"For instance, American women are always asking me what they can do to cover up certain features. European women have the right idea when they ask, what can they do to clean up and make it better?

"The more you try to cover up something, the more you emphasize the problem," continued the international make-up artist for the Elizabeth Arden line of cosmetics.

"The proper skin care is most important," said Marie Beck, a beauty consultant for Dorothy Gray cosmetics. "A face must be prepared. "Then make-up will be naturally beautiful."

And a healthy word to the wise. The sooner one starts, the sooner a face will mirror the results.

THAT IS NOT to say that every woman giving herself a beauty facial will look as though she just returned from a secret trip to the Fountain of Youth. Let's face facts. A woman has to work with the face with which she was born. Some have smooth flawless skin and others are not quite so lucky.

The point made by both beauty consultants is that every women can at least improve and enhance her appearance.

"What is the perfect face?" asked Roberts. "And by whose standards . . . not mine. We don't all look alike nor are we supposed to. I say to a woman, 'Here is your face. Now let's finish it.' "

"Nothing makes a woman younger than looking like now and keeping herself up," he added.

"We can't stop the aging process, but it is possible to make it be more kind and slow it down."

SKIN CARE remains basically the same procedure year round, except extra protection must be utilized for spring and summer. The reason is the sun. . . it's a seldom recognized enemy that leaves ugly wrinkles to its victims. Women are oblivious to its real effects for somehow the bronzed tan has become the overall beauty status symbol.

"I wouldn't tell someone not to go swimming," said Roberts. "But one should always be protected when exposed to the sun."

And the type of protection Roberts is referring to is sun screening, not just sun tanning oils.

And, of course, the skin, no matter what the conditions, should always be properly cleansed too. Maria Beck recommends two separate routes, depending upon skin type, after the initial cleansing.

"APPLY AN ASTRINGENT for oily skin and a freshener to normal or dry skin," she said. "They act as a rinse. Both help to refine the pores and help stimulation."

Moisturizer is the next step . . . and a necessary one.

"Without using a moisturizer, make-up will turn orangy and oil will come through," said Mrs. Beck.

And one hint to the doubters . . . to the women who don't think moisturizer pertains to them. No one is considered exempt from moisturizer use . . . not even women with the oiliest of skins.

"A moisturizer is neither oily or greasy," said Roberts. "Every woman should wear it."

"And this goes for young girls and women who feel they don't need make-up. Moisturizer is still applied to offset the drying effects of the weather. It gives a moist healthy look . . . not oily."

ONLY WHEN THE face is adequately prepared is it time to talk about applying actual make-up.

And predictable for spring and summer is lots more color . . . a bright explosion to the lips and cheek area. Eye make-up is still important but the shadows only softly enhance the eye which is no longer the only focal point of the face.

"Just because something is new, a woman should not copy it exactly," said Roberts. "She should use it as a message. If she sees a model in a magazine with shaved off brows, it doesn't mean doing it herself. It only means not taking an eyebrow pencil and drawing on darker lines."

Just as femininity is being enhanced in fashion, so make-up is bringing back the female.

"BUT I DON'T like to hear talk about returning to an era," said Roberts. "The only relation we have now with the 1930s is that then, too, it was a very pretty lady time. But while women then wore dark reds, today's woman is choosing a bright red and a see-through natural look rather than a heavy one."

"Make-up should compliment and accent one's good features and minimize the poor ones," said Mrs. Beck. "I don't believe you should always wear one shade of make-up. If you are not feeling good or look washed out, you need more color. Light colors bring forward and accent while dark colors minimize," continued Mrs. Beck.

"This spring we are going from dull protest colors to shy flower and rainbow colors."

MARIE BECK, beauty consultant for the Dorothy Gray line of cosmetics, visits stores in this area to offer advice to women interested in putting their best face forward.

Fashion

JUST ONE IDEA. Jann Johnson in her book, "The Jeans Book," offers many suggestions for decorating denim.

Denim has become the fabric of the hour . . . any hour. A pair of bleached out jeans is about the most casual route one can follow, but long denim skirts are also using their special fabric influence to push into the evening wear line.

But funny thing about denim. It's only half finished when you buy it. What I mean to say . . . plain denim just doesn't cut it anymore. Its greatest popularity is through the addition of individuality, and that comes from home with a needle and thread, a few extra appliques or embroidery stitches and a bit of creativeness.

Needles and thread are always available and appliques are flooding the market for home seamstresses, but that touch of innovation or creativeness is sometimes just a little bit more difficult to come by. We're not all artists. And most of us can use a little help.

THAT'S WHY JANN Johnson came out with her book, "The Jeans Book." It's filled mostly with decorating tricks for jeans, yet all the ideas can be carried over to any denim garment . . . hot pants, skirts or jackets.

Her ideas are endless and so are her designs . . . autobiographical jeans or those made into a collage with everything from a leather New York City skyline to a calico sea. She even spruces up faded jeans with geometric patterns of rhinestones that could take real guts to wear.

Jann explains all the various media that can be used . . . paint, embroidery, applique, quilting and stencilling. She includes patterns that can be easily copied. So what if it wasn't your original idea? The pants are yours and you'll have that noticeable hand-crafted look when you're finished.

AND, OF COURSE, if you enjoy this kind of thing, you can go one step further and decorate hats, bags and sneakers. Denim scraps can be turned into jewelry. Jann shows you how.

"The Jeans book" is published by Ballantine Books and retails for $2.95. It's available now in most book stores.

But before you collect all your denim, consider another book included in the craft line put out by Ballantine which costs a dollar more and is all about macrame.

Laura Torbet is the author of this book and in addition to giving a complete basic course in macrame, she also includes step-by-step instructions to 25 wearable projects.

THERE ARE ALL kinds of macrame chokers, bracelets, pins and even ties for men. There are instructions which show one how to make suspenders, sashes, belts and both drawstring and shoulder bags. Boleros are included as well as every length of vest. And here's a new one . . . lessons in macrame fringe for ponchos and pants.

And if you're really daring, there's a pattern in the book for a macramed bikini. But that comes after learning the basics, of course.

Caught In The Recycling Trap

by MARY SHERRY

Whenever I think of it, usually in March and again in September, I empty the lint trap in the dryer. The process is simple enough. I pull out the trap, peel off the lint, fold it gently into a bat and drop it into the wastebasket.

I do this with a degree of sadness, because by the time I remove the lint, it is pretty well packed together, and I always feel I am throwing out something of value.

I had been bothered by this for some time, and I finally expressed my feelings to my friend and next-door neighbor, Alice Flaxton.

"I can't say I've been worrying about what to do with my dryer lint, but now that you mention it, it does look like it should be usable in some way," Alice mused. The great thing about Alice is that I never have to worry that she will think any of my ideas are ridiculous. She takes everything quite seriously.

"I USED TO happily throw it out," I told her, "but now with the big push to recycle things out of concern for the earth's ecology, I feel guilty when I throw it away."

Alice carefully examined the sample of my dryer trappings that I had saved to show her.

"Hmm. I see what you mean. It seems only reasonable that it should be possible to recycle this back into a new towel or children's rompers."

"Absolutely. If they can do it with cans and newspapers, why not with dryer lint?"

"But it will never work," Alice said with finality.

"Why not? It makes sense to me. Even if the lint didn't look like something of potential value, I've been so conditioned that I feel guilty about throwing anything away. I'm sure there are thousands of housewives who share that feeling."

"I'M SURE you're right," Alice agreed. "But a campaign to recycle the lint would never get off the ground. First, any school child can tell you the stuff is biodegradable. And what recycling effort can be successful without kids who believe the stuff is worth collecting? Next, it wouldn't save a threatened natural resource. Then, even if you could collect it, it would undermine the economy of the cotton industry — all the way down to the farm machinery. After all, a human lint flicker is a lot cheaper than a mechanical cotton picker."

Alice's argument, as usual, was effective, but I still wasn't satisfied.

"It still seems like such a waste. Isn't there something we can do with it?"

Alice looked at the compacted lint again. Suddenly she brightened.

"DO YOU SEE how this is made of different layers of different colors?" she asked.

"Sure. There's my yellow rug. Here are the pink towels. This is from a pale green sheet blanket."

"Of course! And what does this remind you of?" Alice held the lint up so I could see a side view.

I had to admit I didn't know.

"A geologist's dream! At last, a way to demonstrate to kids the principle of rock stratification!" Alice rushed off with my lint.

I suppose there's value in everything. Sometimes, though, I need Alice's point of view.

Girl Wins Science Award For First Time

by GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI) —Chalk up another first for woman. This time, it's a slip of a girl showing the boys what it's all about in the world of science.

Nina Felice Tabachnik, 16, of Little Neck, N. Y., has just waltzed off with the grand prize in the annual Westinghouse science talent search, the first time in the 31-year history of the search that a girl has placed No. 1.

To do it and win a $10,000 scholarship, she had to prove her research abilities over 14,000 high school seniors in the 50 states and the District of Columbia.

She doesn't think the boys minded at all that a girl won the top honor. "Maybe it's the new morality or something," said Miss Tabachnik in an interview via telephone.

"But the boys all seemed quite pleased."

HER OWN AGE group applauds her, but let's face it, the woman scientist still is a rare breed. Oh, we all know of Madame Marie Curie who with her husband shared the Nobel Prize for discovery of radium. Then their daughter Irene shared a Nobel with her husband for their work in chemistry.

The National Science Foundation, Washington, D. C., estimates there are 650,000 scientists in the United States today. Only 8 per cent are women.

"I think there are so few outstanding ones because of the way people look on women," said Miss Tabachnik. "You don't become a scientist overnight. It takes years of growing. And women rarely have been given opportunities to grow. It's the great putdown in the masculine world.

"I don't think there are differences that make men better scientists than women, or the other way around. It's an individual thing . . . having the intellectual stamina to go on."

MISS TABACHNIK, a tall, brunette, says there's only one other scientist in her family — her father, William, an engineer and management scientist. Her mother is a professional musician; her sister, 13, plans a singing career.

The research that won Miss Tabachnik top prize began in her biology lab, in further experiments at home and her reading of scientific journals. It was a study to determine the effects of chemicals called aldehydes on plants, euglena facilis, that live in the water. You'll find aldehydes in such things as smokestack emissions, even cigarette smoke, she said.

She believes these pollutants could be a hazard to plant life . . . and thus ultimately to human life.

The Home Line

by Dorothy Ritz

Dear Dorothy: I live alone in an apartment and keep talking about getting a pet. You have to walk a dog, regularly, rain or shine, and I won't do it. I don't like cats. A friend said I ought to keep goldfish. Do you know whether these are a lot of trouble for one not so young any more?

—Mrs. Carl B.

Our son came up with a tank of fish in his home a few years ago to the delight of his children. The whole family is involved and when we visit find ourselves equally fascinated. Like other collectors, they are guided by books. There is very little trouble to it. You could start with a medium-size bowl and a few domestic goldfish. Begin by using water that has been allowed to set for 24 hours so that the minerals and chlorine bleach will have evaporated. All you need to do is sprinkle in a little food each day and change the water when it gets cloudy or low. I think you'd be happier with tropical fish rather than the domestic kind. Not only are they a little more hardy but they come in many colorful varieties and are far more interesting. Go ahead.

Dear Dorothy: In one of my recipes which uses raw eggs, the recipe says: Be sure to use only clean eggs with no cracks in the shells. I've been wondering why. Do you know?

—June A.

Salmonella germs often invade eggs that are cracked, so it's wise to cook eggs in some form before serving them. Therefore, in recipes using either raw whites or raw yolks, not using cracked eggs is just an extra precaution.

Dear Dorothy: I always buy my nylons when they're on sale — enough to last until the next markdown. Is it necessary to wash them as long as they are not going to be worn for some time?

—Joy F.

No. Nylon doesn't deteriorate, washed or unwashed.

New Woodfield Sisterhood Sets 'Game Night'

The newly formed Sisterhood of Woodfield Jewish Congregation will hold a Game Night on Tuesday at the home of president Mrs. Jerry Gothelf, 235 Fleming Lane, Schaumburg.

Mrs. Gary Sherman, chairman of the get-acquainted event, says "We hope to have all the members of the Sisterhood and all the guests and friends we can in for an evening of bridge, kaluki and mah jongg."

Either Mrs. Gothelf, 894-0132, or Mrs. Sherman, 882-0369, can be called for details.

NEWLY ELECTED officers of the Sisterhood include Mrs. Avrum Mendelsohn, Hoffman Estates, vice president; Mrs. Jeff Berngard, Schaumburg, treasurer; Mrs. Neil Henry, Schaumburg, financial secretary; and Mrs. Lloyd Weston, Addison, recording secretary.

The women are currently working on plans for a spring fashion show to be held late in April.

HELPING NUDGE SPRING along the way, Mrs Chuck Loveisky and Mrs. Bill Anderson of Hoffman Estates Jaycee Wives make their own colorful flowers. The decorations are for Saturday's "Prologue to Spring" luncheon and fashion show at Indian Lakes Country Club. Jaycee Wives will model ensembles from the Lual Shop.

JC Wives Set Stage For Spring

Saturday's luncheon and fashion show to be presented by Hoffman Estates Jaycee Wives will offer guests "A Prologue to Spring." The setting will be Indian Lakes Country Club in Bloomingdale, with a social hour beginning at noon, then luncheon and a parade of fashions from the Lual Shop in Hoffman.

Women from the club will do the modeling, along with two special guests: Holly Thorsen, "Miss Hoffman Estates of 1972," and Ellen Ann Verive, "Miss Hoffman of 1971." Jaycee Wives doing the modeling are Mrs. Kenneth Grachus, Mrs. Bob Janus, Mrs. Chuck Loveisky, Mrs. Hank Bollman, Mrs. Bob Hill and Mrs. Thomas Barber.

This is the club's second annual spring luncheon, and all members have tickets to sell. Mrs. Dale Meadors, 882-0907, can be called for reservations.

Catholic Women To Observe A Prayer Day

Set 'Remembrance Week' For POWs

Editor's Note: President Nixon has set aside next week as a time of special remembrance of the more than 1,600 Americans missing in Southeast Asia or held captive in Communist prison camps there. No one knows when the prisoners of war will regain their freedom. But the United States, as this dispatch reports, already has well developed — if little known — plans for their reception ready to throw into action when the release day comes.

by EDWARD K. DeLONG

WASHINGTON (UPI) — For more than six years, the Pentagon has prepared for the unknown day when Navy Lt. Everett Alvarez Jr., and a growing list of other Americans will be liberated from their prisoner of war confinement in Southeast Asia. The code name is Egress Recap.

Formal planning started in late 1965, about 16 months after Alvarez was shot down on his first mission over North Vietnam and began the longest known period of POW captivity ever endured by a U.S. serviceman.

Polished, expanded and constantly updated, the early studies have grown now into a comprehensive master plan for the care of POWs after their release.

Of necessity operation "Egress Recap" is complex.

NO ONE KNOWS when Hanoi will release the prisoners, or where the release will take place, or even precisely how many Americans are held captive in North Vietnam, South Vietnam and Laos. Separate plans have been developed to cover every possible contingency.

Each of the plans, however, carries a common first step. Whenever and wherever the release takes place, the initial priority will be to provide prompt medical care for every man who emerges from a Communist prison camp. Most of them, officials feel, will need it.

Care will be administered at the nearest U.S. military hospital overseas. Then the men will return to the United States through normal medical evacuation channels, but with top priority, for reunion with their families and further treatment at some 30 designated military general hospitals throughout the country.

After the family reunions and most essential debriefing and hospitalizaton, men who are well enough will meet the press.

Finally, the armed forces will attend to legal matters — perhaps charging a few with aiding the enemy, and officially listing as dead some of those now considered only missing in action.

"Basically the whole thing revolves around the welfare of the individual," said one official close to the POW planning.

"His needs and his welfare are going to take consideration over everything else."

AND AS G. WARREN Nutter, assistant Secretary of Defense for International Security Affairs, told a House foreign affairs subcommittee March 16, the program's objective "is to help the returnee rejoin his family and our society as quickly, easily and confidently as possible, and with the honor that he deserves."

Second only to medical attention will come extensive inquiry about other Americans who may have fallen into Communist hands. This will be done as quickly as possible, before men forget details or hear other accounts that might color their own recollections.

"You're trying to get people to remember the most minute details over a long period of time," the official said.

"THESE MEN WILL be able to tell us about men who were captured with them and about men who died from injuries before they were taken prisoner, for instance. Or about others who may have been shot on capture. These men will be our best source of information on the others."

Information is sorely needed. There are more than 1,140 servicemen listed as missing in action — meaning the United States has no information about what happened to them.

At least a few, U.S. officials believe, must have been captured alive. Others undoubtedly are dead. But remembering the Korean war, when men declared dead turned up alive, the Pentagon refuses to list deaths — which would ease the strain on families and free widows to remarry — in the absnece of solid evidence. From the POW debriefings officials hope to gain evidence, both about men who died and men who were captured. They also hope to sort out some of the tangles in the rosters of those taken captive.

ALTHOUGH THE United States lists 386 "known" POWs in North Vietnam alone, Hanoi has admitted holding 339 plus another 20 who died in captivity. This discrepancy, Defense Department officials say, may result simply from slip-shod North Vietnamese accounting methods.

In addition, North Vietnam refuses to acknowledge there are any American POWs in South Vietnam, Laos or Cambodia — perhaps to preserve the fiction that the Hanoi regime has no troops in these countries.

The Pentagon, however, drawing on various intelligence sources, lists 890 servicemen captured in South Vietnam and 51 in Laos. It also says 18 POWs died unacknowledged in South Vietnam and 2 others died in North Vietnam.

On the basis of this informtion, Pentagon officials estimate that something like 500 POWs might be released.

SOME, SUCH AS five Air Force pilots shot down during bombing missions over North Vietnam in February, have been imprisoned only a short while. Others, such as Alvarez, have been captives for years.

Knowledge of their physical condition is scanty at best. Hanoi has refused to grant International Red Cross permission to inspect even the prison camps in North Vietnam, much less the jungle prisons in South Vietnam and Laos.

The best indicator of what to expect, therefore, comes from the 61 men who already have returned — 23 released by the Viet Cong, 9 released by the North Vietnamese, 24 who escaped the Pathet Cong captors, 2 who escaped the Pathet Lao, and 3 recaptured by U.S. forces in South Vietnam.

Photographs released by North Vietnam and eyewitness accounts related by a few journalists provide a second indicator. Using these sources of information as a guide, U.S. officials have prepared for:

—Widespread malnutrition and severe loss of weight.

—A HIGH INCIDENCE of blood and intestinal diseases indigenous to Southeast Asia, malaria, amoebic dysentery, parasites and fungus.

—Some wounds and broken bones, suffered in the downing of aircraft or during capture, which have not been treated according to U.S. standards will require additional treatment or prosthetic devices.

—A low incidence of severe psychiatric disorders, but some need of psychiatric counseling for those who have been held prisoner the longest.

A few men, such as those seen playing basketball in films released by North Vietnam last Christmas, who are in good physical condition.

THE CASE OF Navy Lt. Robert Frishman offers an example.

deprived of sleep, beaten, had his fingernails removed and was put in solitary, but the North Vietnamese insisted that he make the false humane treatment statements, and threw him in a dark cell alone for 38 days to think about it."

When the release finally does come, U.S. planners believe it most likely the prisoners will be handed over in either Hong Kong, Peking, or Vientiane, Laos — the place from which Red Cross planes fly to Hanoi and where the nine men released by North Vietnam were turned loose.

If this is the case the first stop for the newly released POWs probably will be a military hospital in Japan.

"WE WON'T MOVE them until they can stand the long flight back to the United States," one official said. "We don't want something to happen to even one of them just because we moved him too soon."

Back home, each will be sent to a general hospital operated by the service to which he belongs. Most of those "known" captured are pilots — 244 from the Air Force, and 143 from the Navy. The Army lists 71 POWs, and the Marine Corps lists 23.

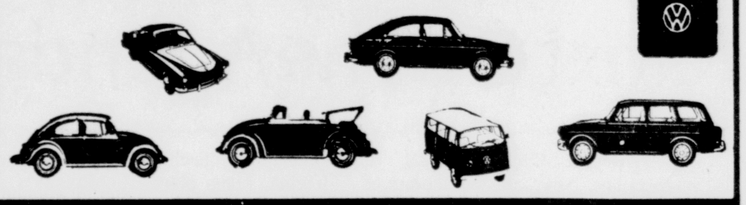

When possible, the returnees will be placed in hospitals near their homes. The Army, Navy and Air Force will have each designated about 10 general hospitals where they will have treatment facilities and skills to care for the returnees.

THE CONTROLLED atmosphere of the hospitals also will offer the men privacy for their first family reunions. They will be shielded from excessive publicity and allowed undisturbed debriefing by POW planners and intelligence experts.

Only after that will military officials turn their attention to the legal aspects

Gubernatorial Candidates Give Their Views

Editor's Note: United Press International questioned the four gubernatorial candidates — Gov Richard B. Ogilvie, Dr. John Mathis, Lt. Gov. Paul Simon and Daniel Walker — on issues concerning their campaigns. Following are the questions and the verbatim replies of the Republicans, Ogilvie and Mathis.

Q — WHAT, IN your view, is the single most desirable quality you could bring to the office of governor?

Ogilvie: "The understanding of the state's problems gained through four years of experience in making the difficult decisions the office requires and in emphasizing the need for honesty and integrity in all positions of public trust."

Mathis: "Honesty and integrity in state government."

Q — IF YOU WERE elected governor, what (aside from fixed items) would be your highest-priority legislative program?

Mathis: "Limit the time the governor of Illinois may serve to one term of four to six years. No repeat. Ask for a state law which would prohibit state officials from soliciting state employes for political contributions and this same law would prohibit state employes from contributing to any state candidate's political campaign funds."

Ogilvie: "Aid to education, including financial support and steps to improve classroom quality, tax relief for the elderly, measures to protect our environment, and a reduction in the burden of welfare costs on our taxpayers are some of the highest-priority goals of my administration."

Q — TO WHAT EXTENT do you think the governor should use the amendatory veto power granted him by the 1970 constitution?

Ogilvie: "The power should be used with care to control excessive spending and to make necessary changes in bills to keep them within the spirit of the legislative intent without doing violence to the interests of the public."

Mathis: "I believe the governor should use the amendatory veto power with great discretion."

Q — WHAT GENERAL approach would you pursue to improve the state's fiscal situation?

Generating additional tax revenue, federal aid, reducing expenditures, etc.

Mathis: "There will be no tax increase during my four years in office. I would fire all 1,500 of Governor Ogilvie's patronage workers. Federal aid is impossible because the federal government is broke. I would eliminate the fat and the fraud from each state budget."

Ogilvie: "The single most important step will be to relieve Illinois taxpayers of the burden of welfare costs through a federal assumption of the costs of this truly national problem. When this is accomplished — as it surely will be — state government will then have the financial means to aid local education and to relieve the heavy burden on the property tax in our communities."

Jesse James Legend Still Alive

by MARGARET P. RICHARDS

KEARNEY, MO. (UPI) — It will be 90 years April 3 since Jesse James was killed by "the dirty little coward who shot Mr. Howard," but the fabled outlaw still is kicking up a controversy.

More than 2,000 Clay County, Mo., citizens recently petitioned county administrators to buy or condemn the now crumbling house that sheltered Jesse and Frank James between forays. They want it propped up or rebuilt and the farm made into an historical park.

Jesse's grandsons — the brothers Lawrence, Forrester and Chester Barr — who stand to inherit the property, want to keep it in the family.

What's left of the old homestead, which once comprised 240 acres, is now the property of Mrs. Mae James, widow of Frank's only child, Bob. She is in her 90s and was declared a ward of the state some time ago. The Probate Court administers her affairs. In the meantime visitors pay 75 cents to go through the ancient splitlog house. The money goes to support Mrs. James in a Liberty, Mo., nursing home.

Visitors flock to the farm, although they can only peer into the oldest section of the house, with its giant fireplace, because the floor is sinking and so rotted with age that it is unsafe. Many are drawn to the house, part of it built in the 1820s, by the legend of the brothers Frank and Jesse James who robbed rich Yankees to help poor Southerners — a story historians discount.

ALMOST EVERYONE in Kearney feels strongly about the James farm — one way or the other — and many tell tales of the outlaws handed down by parents and grandparents.

Here as elsewhere, Jesse gest top billing — possibly because he was shot down by a traitor member of his own gang, perhaps with the connivance of the governor of Missouri. Frank lived to come home at last, a free man, and to be recalled to this day by oldsters as a "fine, steady kind of fellow."

"You know Frank was never convicted of anything, and for that matter neither was Jesse," Grover Albright, 87, said, as he talked about his "first cousins once removed."

"I ought to know. My mother — she was a Cole — was a cousin to Frank and Jesse. My mother and I lived there (the James house) and took care of Aunt Zerelda."

Aunt Zerelda was Mrs. Zerelda Cole James Samuel, mother of the James boys and their sister, Susan. Their father was The Rev. Robert S. James, an upright Kentucky man, who founded several still-living little churches in the Kearney area and was one of the organizers of William Jewell College, now a thriving, Baptist-affiliated college.

He left his family when the boys were small and apparently died of cholera shortly after he arrived at Hangtown (now Placerville), Calif. As for his wife, Albright said: "She was a fiery one-kind of a hellcat. My mother said The Rev. James went to California to get away from her tongue."

ALBRIGHT SAID The Rev. James and his wife both were educated people. "But because of the war things were different for Frank and Jesse and they didn't get much schooling," he said. "But it don't take schooling to be smart, and they were smart."

Frank rode with William Clarke Quantrill during the Civil War, and Jesse joined him after several incidents, including one in which his stepfather, Dr. Reuben Samuel, was strung up on a tree by Yankee militia. He later was cut down and suffered only a red streak on his neck and Jesse was beaten. Later Jesse was jailed briefly — as far as is known, the only time Jesse was jailed.

Jesse was shot twice while with Quantrill, which helped identify his body when he was killed. Jesse had been living under the alias of "Thomas Howard" at a modest house in St. Joseph for several months when, on Monday, April 3, 1882, he took off his guns, the better to climb on a chair to straighten a picture. In a matter of seconds Bob Ford shot him in the head — and rushed out to telegraph Missouri Gov. Thomas T. Crittenden, who had posted a $20,000 reward for the James brothers, dead or alive. Jesse was 34 when he died.

The slaying of unarmed Jesse taught Frank something, according to Albright, who said: "Frank wore one of them big six inch guns as long as he lived. I worked for him three years and a finer man I never knew, but he always wore that gun."

If the James Gang committed all the crimes attributed to it, their loot amounted to about a half million pre-inflation dollars between Feb. 13, 1866, when the Clay County Savings Bank at Liberty was robbed of $58,000 and when Jesse was killed.

"He was some guy," Albright said, admiringly.

of the POWs.

One controversail matter to be decided is whether any charges should be brought for violations of the U.S. Fighting Man's Code — a set of standards for prisoner behavior adopted after the Korean war — or other crimes that may be alleged by returned prisoners.

Such charges could include aiding the enemy through propaganda statements and broadcasts, hoarding food and informing on fellow prisoners, or revealing U.S. military plans, strengths and weaknesses.

Frishman returned in August, 1969, after almost two years in captivity in North Vietnam. One of his arms, shattered when his plane was downed, was poorly repaired and almost useless when he got home. He is still undergoing corrective surgery which seems successful.

Some of the other problems officials must prepare to deal with were described by Frishman in a news conference.

"The North Vietnamese tried to get Lt. Cmdr. Richard A. Stratton to appear before a press delegation and say that he had received humane and lenient treatment," he said.

"HE REFUSED because his treatment hadn't been humane. He's been tied up with ropes to such a degree that he still has large scars on his arms from rope burns which became infected. He was PAST EVIDENCE shows few such charges will be preferred. The conduct of only 565 among the 4,428 POWs recovered after Korea were questioned, and only a handful of these were convicted in court martials.

Of the 61 POWs returned from Southeast Asia so far, only two have been charged with aiding the enemy by "preparing, furnishing and delivering to the Viet Cong certain documents, statements and writings inimical to the interest of the United States." These charges, however, were dropped subsequently by military authorities.

Details of the Egress Recap plans are cloaked in secrecy, partly because of the intelligence aspects involved and partly to discourage false rumors that a POW release is imminent. Even the broad outlines of the plans are discussed only in private.

DESPITE SUCH precautions, rumors have sprung up. One recent incident, a widely published report that Fitzsimmons Military Hospital in Denver was being prepared to receive the POWs shortly, brought a deluge of telephone calls to the Pentagon from the men's families.

"The main reason we don't discuss these things more is the families," one official said. "My God, if you could see the way they go — the thread of hope they cling to."

Use Check, Money Order To Pay Tax

Use a check or money order to pay your 1971 federal income tax, Roger C. Beck, district director of Internal Revenue for Northern Illinois, advises.

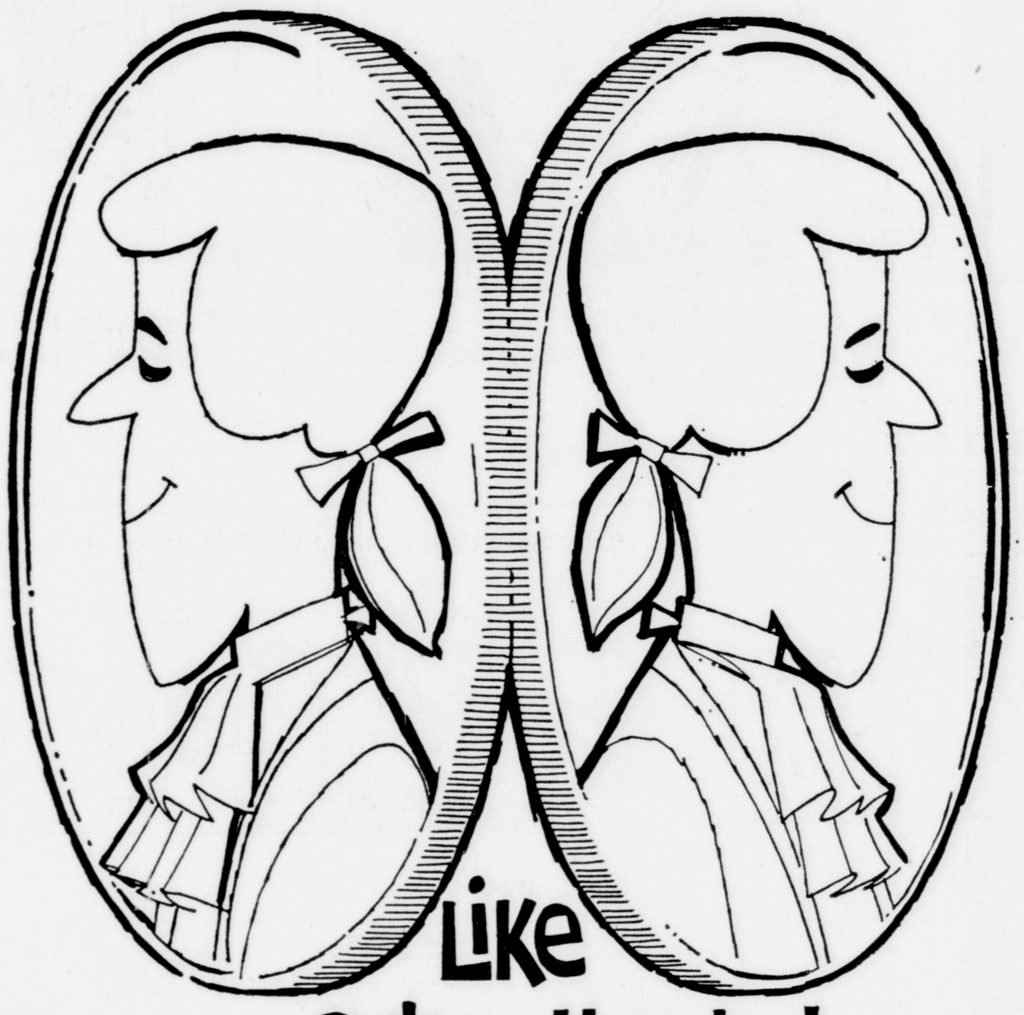

Unlike a cash payment, a check or money order gives you a record of payment in case of loss or misdelivery.

Beck said payment can be stopped on a misplaced check or money order and a new payment made.

Checks or money orders should be made payable to the Internal Revenue Service. Write your Social Security number on the check or money order and state the exact purpose of the payment to help assure your payment is properly credited.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE – Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

WHEN THE WEDDING IS OVER . . .

Let your friends read about it in the HERALD

But remember our deadlines . . .

For detailed wedding story (including gown descriptions and a listing of attendants) wedding information is due in Herald office within three weeks following wedding date. Information received in Herald office after three weeks and up to five weeks following wedding date will be used for a brief story only, or caption.

For publication the Herald requests a 5x7 black and white glossy close-up photo (bouquet and up) of bridal pair or bride alone. Depending on color tones, contrast and clarity, color photos may possibly be used at the discretion of the editors. Small snapshots are not acceptable.

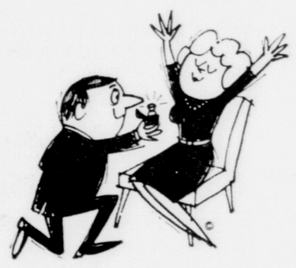

Ask Your Photographer To Make the Selection

We suggest the bride or some member of the family select a photo for the newspaper immediately upon receiving photographer's proofs. Better yet, ask the photographer to make the selection to avoid delay.

If your photographer cannot comply with deadlines, write-up will be published without a photo providing information is in the Herald office before the deadline.

Wedding forms are available in the Herald offices. There is no charge for publishing wedding stories or photos.

Photos accompanied by stamped, self-addressed envelopes will be returned.

There is no charge for engagement pictures and announcements. They will be printed within a week after reaching our office.

Ordinance No. 2340

AN ORDINANCE GRANTING A VARIATION FOR PROPERTY LOCATED AT 930 E. NORTHWEST HIGHWAY, MOUNT PROSPECT, ILLINOIS.

WHEREAS, the Board of Appeals of the Village of Mount Prospect did meet on the 23rd day of September, 1971, at the hour of 8:00 p.m. in the Village Hall of Mount Prospect and did hear Case No. 71-31A, pursuant to legal notice published in the Mount Prospect Herald in September 8, 1971; and

WHEREAS, the Board of Appeals of the Village of Mount Prospect did hear a petition requesting a variation from the requirements of the Mount Prospect Zoning Ordinance in order to operate a retail sales store with less available parking spaces than those required under the said ordinance; and

WHEREAS, the Board of Appeals of the Village of Mount Prospect has recommended to the President and Board of Trustees the granting of the parking variation rquested under Case No. 71-31A for reasons that:

1. There is a practical difficulty and particular hardship on the petitioner in that this parcel has been utilized for retail sales in the past and is zoned B-3, which zoning district allows such retail sales but requires one (1) parking space for every 300 square feet of gross floor area of such building;

2. The purpose of the variation is not based exclusively on a desire to make money;

3. The plight of the owner is due to unique circumstances in that the land is so located that additional parking is not available, since contiguous land has been improved with office buildings, railroad tracks, and retail stores;

4. The alleged difficulty or hardship has not been created by any person presently having an interest in the property;

5. The proposed variation will not impair an adequate supply of light and air to adjacent property, or substantially increase the congestion in the public streets, or increase the danger of fire, or endanger the public safety, or substantially diminish or impair property values within the neighborhood; and

6. the granting of the variation will not be detrimental to the public or injurious to surrounding property in that it will not alter the essential character of the locality; and

WHEREAS, the Building Committee of the Board of Trustees of the Village of Mount Prospect have reviewed Case No. 71-31A and have concurred with recommendations of the Board of Appeals to grant this variation; and

WHEREAS, the President and Board of Trustees of the Village of Mount Prospect have determined that the matters herein are for the best interests of the Village of Mount Prospect;

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT ORDAINED BY THE PRESIDENT AND BOARD OF TRUSTEES OF THE VILLAGE OF MOUNT PROSPECT, COOK COUNTY, ILLINOIS:

SECTION ONE: That the property being the subject matter of Case No. 71-31A, being legally described as follows:

Lot Twenty-Five (25) and that part of Lot Twenty-Four (24) lying Easterly of a line drawn from a point in the Southerly line 4½ inches Easterly of the Southwest corner of said Lot to a point in the Northerly line 3½ inches Easterly of the Northwest corner of said Lot Twenty-Four (24) in Maplewood Heights, being a Subdivision of the East 15.00 chains of that part lying North of Railroad of Southeast Quarter (¼) of Section 12 (except the Southerly 66 feet for road) also of Block Twenty-Six (26) in Busse's Eastern Addition to Mount Prospect in the East Half (½) of Section 12, Township 41 North, Range 11, East of the Third Principal Meridian; is currently zoned under the Zoning Ordinance of the Village of Mount Prospect as B-3 (Business — Retail and Service District), which zoning classification shall remain subject to the following variation hereby granted:

That the five (5) parking spaces presently provided upon the subject property shall be sufficient to serve the existing building located thereon.

SECTION TWO: That the variations granted were given the petitioner herein in view of the fact that:

1. The petitioner has agreed to waive any rights of objection of our records he may have against a special assessment for the improvement of the alleyway immediately adjacent to and to the rear of the property being the subject matter of Case No. 71-31A; and

2. The petitioner herein has agreed to contribute to the Village 75 per cent of the cost of the installation of a sixteen (16) foot paved alleyway along the entire frontage of the property that is the subject matter of Case No. 71-31A (described in SECTION ONE above) which frontage and property lies immediately adjacent to the alley proposed to be constructed and installed.

SECTION THREE: That all requirements of the Mount Prospect Building and Zoning Code shall be applicable except the variation noted in SECTION ONE heretofore mentioned.

SECTION FOUR: That this Ordinance shall be in full force and effect from and after its passage, approval, and publication in the manner provided by law.

Democrats Faced With Kingsize Headache—Gov. Wallace

by STEVE GERSTEL

MIAMI (UPI) — The Democratic Party has emerged from two very costly primaries without a clearcut leader in the crowded field for the presidential nomination, and with a kingsized headache.

In the space of only eight days, Sen. Edmund S. Muskie plummeted from the position of acknowledged frontrunner to just another name on a list of many seeking the prize to oppose President Nixon next November.

The headache the party has acquired is named George Corley Wallace, the tough little Alabama governor who more than doubled the vote of any of the other Democratic candidates in Florida on Tuesday. He will continue to be a factor in the key primaries although virtually no one believes he has a serious chance to get the nomination.

In effect, the Democratic presidential sweepstakes is in a shambles with no candidate, in any sense, out in front for the nomination.

NOR IS THE Illinois primary expected to give any help. The Tuesday face-off has Muskie against former Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy in a "beauty contest" preference poll and Muskie and Sen. George S. McGovern in a battle for the delegates.

The next indicator — if there are to be any before the convention in Miami Beach July 9 — will come in Wisconsin's April 4 primary, when all the candidates who ran in Florida are again on the ballot.

If the New Hampshire and Florida primaries — coming one after the other in the space of a week — failed to establish a solid candidate for the nomination, they at least exposed several fringe candidates for what they are.

ALMOST IGNORED by the voters of New Hampshire and Florida were Sen. Vance Hartke of Indiana, Mayor Sam Yorty of Los Angeles, and Rep. Wilbur Mills of Arkansas. Snubbed in similar fashion by the Florida voters was McCarthy, who was not on the New Hampshire ballot — the same one which rocketed him to prominence only four years ago.

Not quite in the same class — although still a rank outsider — was Rep. Shirley Chisholm of New York, carrying the twin political liabilities of being black and a woman, who finished with 4 per cent of the vote in Florida.

That leaves in serious contention only Muskie, Wallace, McGovern, Sens. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota and Henry M. Jackson of Washington, and New York's Mayor John Lindsay.

The problem is Wallace.

THE OTHER candidates were stunned — not by Wallace's victory in Florida — but by his margin of 42 per cent in an 11-candidate field. Their reactions were not measured by their own successes and failures but by the strong pull the Alabama governor had on the Florida electorate, apparently backing Wallace in an emotional protest against school busing.

They acknowledged that Wallace, who plans to enter a series of primaries beginning with Wisconsin, has become a factor in the contest for the Democratic presidential nomination while, at the same time, refusing to believe he has a chance to win it.

In the aftermath of the two primaries, Muskie's campaign is alive but shattered, leaving some of the nation's leading politicians clinging to the coattails of a candidate who may have lost not only his coat but his shirt. The backers include such prominent names as Ohio Gov. John Gilligan and Pennsylvania Gov. Milton Shapp, who were persuaded to climb aboard early.

In direct contrast, Humphrey, who picked Muskie as his runningmate in 1968, came out of Florida showing that he could still attract the blacks, Jews, and labor. Although Humphrey proclaimed himself as the new leading candidate, none of the other candidates are willing to concede the title to the Minnesota senator.

Jackson, McGovern, and Lindsay all pulled together enough votes in Florida to escape disaster — with Jackson finishing a surprising third — but all three have to show better in Wisconsin to become serious contenders for the nomination.

The Doctor Says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb — I would like some advice on a subject in which I am sure a lot of teen-age girls are interested. As a doctor how do you feel about "French kissing?" The germs and so forth.

Dear Reader — I would suspect that a lot of people feel that the "and so forth" would outweigh the problem of the germs. Seriously, it really depends on whom you are being thusly intimate with. We all have germs. They are on our hands, face, our skin, in our ears, nose — every orifice of the body, including the mouth.

Fortunately, most of these germs which we all carry with us are relatively harmless as far as causing disease. This isn't always true and I'll give you a simple unemotional example. A person who has a severe, sore, strep throat may well infect someone by personal contact, kissing of any type, and even more likely so with French kissing. Colds and respiratory infections when they are present may easily be transmitted this way.

In between infections, the types of bacteria that are in the mouth that may be transmitted from one person to another may not be the kind that would cause any disease. Now, of course, this is a generalization are there are conditions in which germs in the mouth can be transmitted from one person to the other and cause disease. It is obviously one good way of transmitting syphilis, since the germ of syphilis has to remain in a moist environment and moist saliva provides such a moist vehicle for passing the germ from one person to another.

ALL OF US LEARN to live in peace (most of the time) with our germs. When two people with different germs come in close contact new germs are exchanged and the body sometimes reacts adversely until a new peaceful coexistent situation is developed. Studies of the germs each person had before entering a simulated space chamber and what each person had when he came out showed that all team members came out with the same germs in common.

I doubt very much that any really good studies on French kissing in relationship to transmitting syphilis have ever been done, possibly because French kissing often goes along with other activities. I suppose most of the time it is reasonably safe. When it is not, it usually involves transmission of respiratory infections like the common cold and at very infrequent intervals something more serious can be transmitted. I suspect that the "and so forth" is still going to be the determining factor.
